HOLIDAY SEASON SALE

Bought your pillows & comforters elsewhere? Guaranteed you overpaid!!!

CAVEAT EMPTOR (BUYER BEWARE)

Don't be misled by advertisements for European goose down comforters at supposedly "SALE PRICES". We'll show you that most of those ads do not represent good values at all. Just because these advertisements are from major departments stores - do not be fooled-all down is not alike.

The quality of goose down is measured in fill power (also know as loft). Fill Power is the amount of cubic inches one ounce of down will fill. Our 800 plus Siberian Goose Down will fill between 800 and 850 cubic inches of space. "The Company Store" catalog always lists the fill power of their goose down. Bring in their catalog and we'll generally save you 50% off their prices.

Goose Down Comforters are an investment, with proper care a fine quality comforter will last a life time. Our high quality 100% cotton shells, or tickings, are divided into baffle boxes. The baffle box has a mesh channel separating the top from the bottom of the comforter. The baffle allows the down to give you maximum loft without collecting in one section of the comforter. We do not cater to the consumer that is more interested in price than quality. Our most valuable asset is our customer. We will only sell a product that we believe to be the highest value at the best price. Cheap low quality down should fill garage cans not pillows and comforters. All our goose down pillows and comforters contain 100% goose down even though it is legal to combine 70% down and 30% feathers and label the item 100% goose down. Remember feathers are those things with quills, down is similar to tiny balls of cotton, absolutely no hard quill. Our goose down comforters and pillows are machine washable because they only contain down.

The larger the individual down cluster the higher the fill power. The higher the fill power the better the comforter will insulate thus providing more comfort to you. Since you are spending 1/3 of your life in bed it should be as luxurious as possible. - Why not?

The Winner Of The State Of Florida In The Presidential Election Is Who?

By Dan Rattiner

On Friday morning, ten days after the election, Cathie and I came down to breakfast and turned on CNN to see if a new President-elect got decided upon during the night.

"This is Arlene Benson in Tallahassee," the reporter was saying. "We expect a major ruling on the re-count by State Supreme Court Judge Farkas in about ten minutes here."

We sat down. I dug into some oatmeal.

The reporter was standing across the street from a State office building. Also across the street was a sidewalk, a few bushes, the curb.

As she spoke, a small, balding man with a pot belly appeared on the sidewalk, strolling in from the side, carrying a sign. He was about a hundred feet behind the reporter and across the street, but he was going to show us his sign. He held it up. We couldn't read it. He was too far away.

"There should be three different decisions coming out of Tallahassee today..." Arlene was saying into the microphone.

I looked closely at the man. He was wearing a white t-shirt, black shorts and sneakers. He seemed about sixty. He held the sign steady. Then he pumped it up and down over his head to call attention to it.

"...and we've been told that shortly the Florida Secretary of State Katherine Harris intends to distribute a statement."

I got up from my chair and walked closer to the TV.

"Can you read it?" Cathie asked.

"No."

At this point, a second man appeared, coming in on the sidewalk from the side, and walked over to the man with the sign. He wore a white shirt with the sleeves rolled up and had earphones over his ears. His head bobbed up and down as he talked and gestured.

The first man lowered the sign, stuck it under one of his arms, listened for a minute, and then began talking and gesturing back to the man with the earphones. He pointed to the sidewalk. The second man walked off. Now the first man put the sign back over his head and began jumping up and down again.

A car whizzed by. Another. He was dodging them, risking his life so that people could read his sign.

"I think he is saying it's a public sidewalk," I said.

"Arlene, have you talked to any people there on the street in Tallahassee?" a voice-over asked.

"Not yet, Chet," Arlene said.

"Heads will roll at CNN," Cathie said, getting up from the table.

We'd lost interest temporarily in the election. We wanted to know about the man with the sign. What did his sign read?

Now, somebody was calling to him from off to the right. He looked over, smiled and nodded. Next, still holding the sign over his head, he began to walk out into the street toward the camera. The reporter droned on. A car whizzed by. Another. He was dodging them, risking his life so that people could read his sign. A truck whizzed by him.

At this point, Cathie was up close to the TV

screen with me.

"Elect Jesus?" I said. "Down with Gore?"

"It's something yoyo," Cathie said.

The man was now on the white line in the center of the street. The sign was coming into focus.

"YoYo? Like, hey don't elect this guy he's a yoyo?"

"It reads yoyoguy.com," Cathie said. "A website."

"Whatever the decision," Arlene was saying, "you can bet there are going to be appeals. Though one thing's for sure. The re-count will go on."

Anybody watching, six million people across the country at that hour, could now see this man and his yoyoguy.com business sign standing in the middle of the street. What marketing! Only in America!

Suddenly, somebody offscreen to the right attracted the man's attention. He looked worried. Then he turned around and scampered back to the sidewalk by the building. Once again, you could not read the lettering on the sign, but he was pumping it up and down over his head anyway.

"I'm told that the Secretary of State's announcement will be in just a minute and a half Chet," Arlene was saying,

"We've got to look up this website," I said.

Cathie handed me a napkin. She had written the web site name on it. I headed off toward the computer room leaving the oatmeal to get cold behind me. Cathie stayed right where she was. "Let me know what it is," she yelled after me.

In a minute, I had the site on my screen. It told me everything I ever wanted to know about yoyos. There was the history of yoyos, articles about taking care of your yoyo, articles about doing tricks with yoyos, a whole shopping center of yoyo stores where you can get everything from jewelry to attach to yoyos, to original hand crafted yoyos, to peaked caps with yoyos on them to sunglasses. Pay by Visa or MasterCard. Allow four days for shipping.

"Have a look at this," I called out to Cathie. She came over. I clicked on a place where it said ABOUT US.

"Maybe this will tell us more about the man with the sign," I said.

"He's still out there," Cathie reported.

The computer started to go into the ABOUT US section, and then it slowed to a crawl. A minute went by. Two minutes. My computer was still trying to go to ABOUT US. And so, I gathered, were about a million other computers around the country. That was what was slowing things up. A tremendous traffic jam.

"If you find anything, let me know," Cathie said. She walked off back to the kitchen.

Yoyos must be flying off the cyber shelves, I thought.

"All together, a historic day in the making here in Talahassee," Arlene was saying back in the kitchen. "Back to you, Chet." •

Not So E-Z

Double Decking The Montauk Highway, Taking It Back Down, Putting It Back Up

By Dan Rattiner

Local authorities are mulling over the idea of putting an E-Z Pass up at the Shinnecock Canal Bridge. It came up at a Southampton Village session. There would, naturally, be a special card for the locals. (The local authorities are locals.) They could zip right through without charge. It would be the wealthy summer people that would pay.

Of course if you put up an E-Z Pass, you have to put up some manned toll booths for those first-time-to-the-east-end people – we call them tourists – who don't have E-Z Passes. We'd line 'em up in a big traffic jam. Sounds fine to me.

Of course, as time goes by, we'd have to make a few modifications in the E-Z Pass. There are fewer and fewer local people living in these parts as time goes by because real estate prices keep going up. They cannot afford to live here. At the E-Z Pass, therefore, they'd have to make a new category for ex-local people. Moved from Bridgehampton to Shirley? Your E-Z Pass is free. Your uncle sold the house he bought for $25,000 in 1964 to a summer person for six million and you had to move to Calverton? Your E-Z Pass is free too. And congratulations to you.

I think this current proposal about the E-Z Pass came about as a result of thinking about the Shelter Island Ferries, the New Jersey Turnpike the bleatings of the first summer people and the recently put into effect luxury real estate tax.

The Shelter Island ferry charges $8 a car and driver one way from the mainland to the island. But you can buy 10 ferry rides either way for just $60. That's $6 a round trip for the local people who go back and forth and back and forth. And $8 for the same round trip for the summerpeople.

One of my favorite ideas... was a proposal submitted ten years ago to simply double deck the Montauk Highway.

The New Jersey Turnpike and other superhighways are in the thinking because they prove the E-Z Pass works.

And the summer people say we should have put a gate across the Shinnecock Canal to keep people out now that they are here.

And the luxury real estate tax has added about $15 million this year to the Town coffers. The entire combined budgets of East and Southampton Townships are just $90 million. That's a fifteen percent boost. How it works is that the rich people playing the real estate market have to pay a tax of 2% to the Townships any time they buy a property for more than $250,000. Notice the local people's buying and selling come in under the radar. Works just fine. The law went into effect last year.

This new E-Z Pass proposal is just the latest in a long line of plans to ease the traffic problem on the East End. The community has considered building a Montauk Highway bypass through the woods north of the present road, which would involve condemning a tremendous amount of top-dollar land through Southampton, East Hampton and Amagansett, and would bankrupt the Federal Government.

There has been a plan to build a less expensive bypass, a two lane limited access road right alongside the railroad tracks where you wouldn't have to condemn all this land. (They'd have big parking areas and then busses to take people to where they wanted to go. Sort of like Long Term Parking at Kennedy Airport.

Both of these plans are bad ideas in my opinion because when you build more roads, you immediately get more cars to use them. So you wind up with the same traffic jam, but twice as much. Happens every time.

One of my favorite ideas (that never happened) was a plan submitted ten years ago to double deck the Montauk Highway. This would solve the traffic problem for awhile, but as the word got out, the old rule that if you build more roads you get more cars to use them would go into effect. And so they shot the plan down.

I keep thinking about it though. More and more cars would mean more and more motorists noticing how ugly this double decker was — all double deckers are ugly — and so soon the word would get around and then NOBODY would be coming out to the Hamptons. That would be bad. And so they'd take the second level down. Store it somewhere. Let people know the Hamptons were beautiful again.

Now people would start coming out again, and soon, again, there would be too many, so you'd put the double deck back up to drive them away again. It would be an ongoing balancing act. And jobs for the locals. Fine tune it. Get just the traffic you want. It would work.

Forget I ever wrote this. •

...And The Candidate Winning Florida In The Presidential Election Is Who?

By Dan Rattiner

People say that the election of 2000 was the wildest in history and nothing like it had ever happened before. They look at the Nixon-Kennedy vote and note that even though it was a squeaker, it was all over by morning. They read a bit about Grover Cleveland, who won the popular vote in 1892 but lost the electoral vote, and they note that things went smoothly, although the people were so upset about him winning the popular vote but losing the election that four years later they elected him in a landslide. Are there no precedents we can look to that might help us? Are we really in totally uncharted waters?

Well, a few weeks ago, I read The New York Times and came across the astonishing story of the election of 1876. People went to bed on Election night thinking the Governor of New York, Samuel Tilden would be the next President of the United States. When they woke up in the morning, they found the election was deadlocked. One state was too close to call and it would decide everything. Guess which one? Florida. Anything about this sound familiar?

I am sorry to say that after that, the matter remained unresolved for months, and at one point, there was a fear that civil unrest might even break out. Finally, four months later and just forty-eight hours before the new President whoever he might be was scheduled to be inaugurated, that old drunk, the lame duck President Ulysses B. Grant, made a proposal on what to do that was accepted by all. The procedure was followed. And on inauguration day morning, we had a new President.

And so Rutherford B. Hayes, during his four years in the White House, was referred to as "Mr. Fraudulency" and old "Eight to Seven."

There were many lessons that could have been learned from what happened in the election of 1876. But none were. Perhaps it would be useful to recount the story of that election. Here it is.

1876 was just eleven years after the end of the Civil War. The slaves were free and could vote. And the Republicans, who had held the Presidency since the war – remember Lincoln was a Republican – had stationed American troops throughout the defeated Confederacy to make sure the South did not rise again. There was also a lot of graft and looting going on in the South by these hated soldiers from the North.

Eleven years is a long time for an occupation, though, and there was a feeling in the country that perhaps it was time for a change. Perhaps the Democrat, Samuel Tilden, should assume the Presidency and put an end to what the Republicans called "Reconstruction" throughout the South.

The voting was held, and the Democrat, Samuel Tilden, was pretty much assured the win. He was ahead by more than 250,000 popular votes and, as everyone retired for the night, had secured 184 electoral votes. He only needed 185 to win. Florida was still counting votes. So were half a dozen other southern states. Surely one of them would go for Tilden.

You might wonder how, back then, they could get almost all the election results together in just a few hours all across the country. There was no radio or TV. There was, instead, the telegraph. And people went to stand in the streets outside the telegraph offices, and the local newspaper offices and the Democrat or Republican headquarters and read the postings that the people inside put in the windows. At one a.m., with it just about over, the people drifted off and went home. The voting had been about Reconstruction after all. It looked like it would be coming to an end.

But when morning came, South Carolina, Georgia and Louisiana had by very narrow margins come in for the Republican, Rutherford B. Hayes. And the electoral vote still stood at 184 for Tilden with Rutherford B. Hayes now at 181. Florida may have had just fifty thousand voters as compared to the six million today, but it still accounted for four electoral votes. And four electoral votes would bring either Tilden or Hayes up to 185 or above. Florida would decide the election.

All eyes now focused on the State of Florida and it's delayed voting report. The reason soon became apparent. Neither the Republican or Democratic monitors would agree with the manual counting being done by the election officials. By the end of the day, Republican vote counters said that Hayes had won by 933 votes. The Democrats said Tilden had won by 94. As a result, both sets of votes were sent in to Congress. The deadlock continued.

At this particular time, and this is different than today, the Senate was controlled by the Republicans and the House was controlled by the Democrats. The debates about who had won went on for days, then weeks. No other work was being done by either of those august bodies.

As time passed, the attention of Congress began to focus on the votes from other states. Democrats who were dispatched to South Carolina, Louisiana and Georgia said many black voters were intimidated out of coming to the polling places. Ballot boxes were found in rivers and streams. There was, they said, outright fraud.

Republicans dispatched to the scene said that Democrats had gone into black neighborhoods to urge blacks to go to the polls and vote Democratic. Back then, prejudice being what it was, this was considered an unfair practice.

In any case, two sets of votes were now sent to Congress from South Carolina, Louisiana and Georgia, with the Republican set saying the Republican had won and the Democratic set saying the Democrat had won.

As for Florida, representatives for Tilden discovered, in one particular precinct that was largely Democratic, somebody had ruined ballots by smearing them with ink after which the election board had disqualified them. (They didn't have the butterfly ballot back then. So there were no chads and punch holes. But the result was the same.)

Two other states in the west were now called into question. Oregon, with its three electoral votes, had clearly gone for the Republican, Hayes, and there was no dispute about that. On the other hand, the Democratic Governor of Oregon noticed a state law that said postmasters could not be electors. One of the three electors was just that. And so the governor moved to disqualify him, intending to replace him with an elector who would vote for Tilden. Quickly, however, the Republicans cut this scheme off at the pass. Before the postmaster could be disqualified, the Republicans announced that he had been fired from his job as an elector. Then the man got up and quit his job as postmaster. Now they could re-appoint him an elector. And so they did. His vote would stand.

As for Colorado, they hadn't even had a vote. The state had just been admitted to the Union. They weren't set up for balloting. Instead, the Democratic Governor appointed two people electors and told them to vote Democratic. They did that.

This was too much for anybody to deal with. And so the sitting President, Ulysses S. Grant – a Republican – stepped in to announce that he would create a commission to deal with the situation. This commission would only deal with this one particular election. A more permanent commission was needed. But when they got through this, they would deal with that.

This temporary commission, as put together by the President – and everyone agreed to this in order to solve this crisis – consisted of fifteen members, five from the Senate, five from the House and five from the Supreme Court. The commission would decide.

Of course the Senate chose five Republicans and the House chose five Democrats. As for the Supreme Court, where seven of the nine Justices had been appointed by the many recent Republican

Kids On Wheels

A Dozen Ramps, Pipes And Rails At New SkateboardPark Being Built In Hampton Bays

By Janet Berg

Back in the early 60's, kids would strap an old metal roller skate to a piece of two by four and head for the hills. They called this "skateboarding." Although a totally separate sport, it originated from surfers in California who desired surfing on dry land. They used some of the same terminology that surfers used in describing how they rode the waves.

Today's youth has come a long way from the tedious and wobbly ride downhill and turned skateboarding into a sport they like to think of as extreme. Testing their skills and courage, present day tricks are a far cry from going "tandem" or "hanging ten" that baby boomers (who still have a memory) may recall from almost forty years ago.

Without competition and rules, how did they learn the moves over the years? The answer would be; they took their boards out onto the streets and noticed things that any other passer by would never notice. When skateriders walk (or I should say ride) down any given street, they see concrete in a different way. Every bump becomes a "ramp," every drop, a "bowl," and every step, a "grind."

In many villages, such as Westhampton Beach, signs are posted reading NO SKATEBOARDING and the kids have nowhere to go to skate safely. But, since more and more people are getting into it, skateboard parks have become a responsible solution.

The new and long-awaited, "state-of-the-art" Skateboard Park at Hampton Bay's Red Creek Park which proposes a skateboard facility with over a dozen ramps, four "quarter-pipes," and a six-foot deep "skating bowl" and "rails" of various sizes, etc. broke ground and met with much support from the town.

Red Creek also offers many other activities, including baseball, tennis, bike trails, roller hockey, etc. After the Southampton Town Board approved the skateboard park, which has more than doubled the size of the original park proposed in 1998 by Sundy Schermeyer of Westhampton Beach and architect Jay Sears of Quogue, town work crews have started clearing and grading.

The board voted unanimously to approve the funding of $275,000 for the park, which can accommodate up to 200 kids at a time, and includes eighteen ramps (for beginners, intermediate and advanced riders), lighting for night time use, a thirty-acre parking lot, and miscellaneous.

Originally, the plans called for a three-ramp skateboard park on a town-owned property on Mill road in Westhampton, but neighbors turned it into a "not-in-my-back-yard" issue. Sundy, who spearheaded the project, said there was a long list of grievances. "They complained about traffic, about kids using the sidewalks, about litter, about ruining the aesthetics, about noise..." Then she laughed, "Some of the complaints were absurd. One man actually got up and said that when he was a kid (about 70 years ago), he thought he saw a salamander on that property.

"Another lady said she was donating her time to build public restrooms for people who don't even live here. Helping with the toilets? We got a kick out of her legacy.

"All we wanted was a place for the kids to skate, and sometimes negotiating properties can take years. Ms. Schermeyer was vice president of a group called Long Island Shore And Beach Preservation for many years where kids came to plant beach grass and help preserve the dunes. She got to know many kids on the beach, and being a surfer herself, organized the first surf contest in about twenty years in this area."

With a growing demand for a skateboard park, she and Jay Sears (who she refers to as the 'resident angel') went from school to school and sat down with groups of young skaters (in-line skaters and skateboarders) and asked them, "What do you want to see? This is your park.

After learning about the complexities of a "state-of-the-art" Skateboard Park, Superintendent of Parks, Allyn Jackson, said, "We decided to have it done by a professional company from New Jersey called 'Hot Rails,' designed to accommodate 150 to 200 beginners, intermediate, and advanced skaters.

"Skaters will be required to wear safety equipment, to be monitored by teen supervisors who complete a safety training course, and to display a permit to use the park for an minimal annual fee. Riders under 18 will need permission from a parent or guardian to enter."

They are planning to have organized demonstrations and competitions through skateboard companies, and the park will be reinforced to accommodate BMX Bikes at designated times.

After years of trying to get a skateboard park for the kids, it is coming together. Councilwoman Martha Rogers is happy to see this opportunity for kids come to fruition and says, "It's a good thing the town does it and does it right."

Ms. Schermeyer said, "The only other skateboard parks in this area are in Montauk and the latest one opening in Greenport, which has been a tremendous success. Just last week the town of Sag Harbor called us and is very excited about building their own park. We set them up with Drew Hines, who designed our park and I think they're already making preliminary sketches for their first site."

"We have a mutual respect, and the kids have followed through with their desire for this. They didn't just say we want this and that; they sold raffle tickets, and have gone to meetings and they are learning how bureaucracy works. They'll be voting soon enough," she added with a stunning realization.

"This has been a real learning experience for them. They know that when you follow the path you need to, stand behind it, and move forward, anything is possible. And now, it is a reality.

"We're hoping the park will be ready by Christmas. What a gift!" •

"Skaters will be required to wear safety equipment, to be monitored by teen supervisors... and to display a permit.

Presidents, Grant tried to be fair. He said that the Republicans could choose two justices for the committee, the Democrats could choose two justices for the committee, and then those four Justices would sit for a day or two and between them choose the fifth and final justice. In other words, the Democrats could hope to find the least partisan of the remaining four justices, all of whom were Republican, to sit on the commission.

The four justices met and chose Justice David Davis, an attorney from Illinois who years earlier had been appointed by a Republican President, but who had a very evenhanded and independent career as a justice.

At this point, things seemed to go terribly wrong. Apparently, the Republicans just did not trust that Justice Davis would act in their favor. And so, though you couldn't prove it, they kicked him upstairs. Republican leaders got the Illinois Legislature to suddenly decide they could wait no longer to fill a vacant Senate seat. They wanted Justice Davis. They appointed him. No longer a Supreme Court Justice, he now had to excuse himself from serving on the Presidential commission.

Next the four justices chose Justice Joseph Bradley as the final commission member. He was also very independent, though not quite as much as Davis. The Democrats were happy, though. They thought they had gotten somebody fair. They didn't.

The fifteen member commission met to consider the votes in South Carolina, Oregon, Louisiana and Florida on March 2, 1877, just two days before the inauguration. At 4 a.m., they voted. Oregon? Eight to seven for the Republican, Rutherford B. Hayes. Louisiana? Eight to seven for the Republican, Rutherford B. Hayes. South Carolina? Eight to seven for the Republican, Rutherford B. Hayes. Florida? Eight to seven for the Republican, Rutherford B. Hayes.

The House of Representatives, which was controlled by the Democrats, was so angry, they said that instead of confirming Mr. Hayes, they would conduct a filibuster and paralyze the government. There was talk that that night the militia might take to the streets.

But then, around midnight, a meeting between Republicans and Democrats took place in a smoke filled room, and the standoff was resolved. Republican Rutherford B. Hayes would be confirmed as president. And his first act would be to announce that all northern troops would leave the South immediately. It would be the end of Reconstruction.

This was a very bitter pill for the public to accept. Many felt that the election had been stolen. And so, Rutherford B. Hayes, during his four years in the White House, was referred to by the Press and by a large percentage of the populace as "Mr. Fraudulency," and "Old Eight to Seven." After his original ruling about Reconstruction, he accomplished almost nothing. He completed his term. And he declined to run again.

I think that in this present standoff whoever wins, Bush or Gore, ought to appoint the loser to a very important post, perhaps a cabinet post, in the new government. We're gonna need a whole lot of healing. And then we better address this election problem and solve it once and for all. Someday, sooner or later, we're going to have an election this close again. •

Cross

Images Of The Spiritual In Kelly Klein's New Book Of Photographs

By Susan Simm

Kelly Klein has done it again! She has created another big, beautiful volume of fascinating photographs. Her previous books, Pools and Underworld, were lovely coffee table tomes, and Cross, her newest release, is no exception. Cross is a collection of 157 photographs from an extremely varied collection of 20th century photographers, including: Richard Avedon, Nan Goldin, David Hockney, Bert Stern, Paul Strand, Annie Liebovitz and Edward Weston, among many others. The common theme is, of course, the symbol of the cross, in its many manifestations.

Why did she create a book about the image of the cross? "The shape of the cross is why I did this book," Klein told W magazine. "I just find it interesting that a simple little symbol that is so plain... could be so powerful. Also, I think it's graphically a very beautiful design. I have loved and collescted crosses for years."

Of the many interesting images, I found some of the most provocative to be non-religious in nature. In the beginning of the book, there is a photo of thousands of pink flamingos taken from a small plane flying overhead. The cross? The shadow cast by the plane over the birds. Another fascinating cross is created in the photo "Looking Up," by Maria Testino by photographing the empty blue sky between four skyscrapers in Los Angeles. Another of my favorite images is a photo taken by Horst in 1978 entitled, "Courreges Bathing Suit." It depicts a woman sitting with her back to the lens, the belted waistline and center seam creating a cross.

One of the saddest images depicted is the line of crosses symbolizing the "Memorial for the Columbine High School Victims", photographer unknown. Also heartbreaking is the image of a "Cross Burning in Atlanta, Georgia". Taken in 1960 by an unknown photographer, it shows a black businessman removing the burnt cross from his

CULTURE AT THE ROSS SCHOOL WELLNESS CENTER

By Marion Wolberg-Weiss

It usually makes no sense to go out on a Friday night to attend a concert – or any kind of event for that matter. After all, it's been a long day and an even longer week, fighting the powers that be at work, home – and especially at the local phone company. Simply put, we need some relaxation instead of trudging off to a public performance.

Yet people who turned up at the Ross School this past Friday night to hear chamber music provided by Windscape got just that – relaxation – and much more. Not only was the audience privy to a first-rate musical group, but the ambience was remakable as well. So was the opportunity to learn about the influence of Japanese music on composers like Ravel and Debussy.

First the peaceful and reflective ambience at the Ross School's newest facility: downstairs orange and white carp swimming in a small pond great visitors as they enter a room where the concert took place; blond wood floors and seating where people can lounge on the floor add to this impressive setting.

Most rewarding (for this art critic, at least) is the back wall, imbedded with stone and decorated with four abstract murals which are also created of stone. The opposite wall is composed of glass, partially reflecting the performance room and partially allowing the audience to look into a comfortable yet sparse lounge area.

It seems most fitting, therefore, that the concert's program also reflected this Eastern sense of serenity with its homage to Japanese influences. (Coincidentally, Southampton College's Fine Art Gallery is currently featuring a Japanese printmaker, Bokunen Naka.)

The first selection by Windscape (Kinko Kurosawa's "Two Dear Calling") was an effective example of Asian sensibility, recalling nature and solitude as two musicians mirrored a soulful conversation between two lovers (human or otherwise). Their instruments, a flute and clarinet, became both the literal and figurative voices for the composition's "characters."

Such timelessness and sparseness were reflected in other works performed by Woodscape, especially those by Ravel and Dubussy, French Impressionist composers who owed a huge debt to Japanese aesthetics as did Impressionist painters. The group's performance of Debussy's "Poissons d'Or" even showed a direct link between the composer's music and his love for Japanese art objects.

There will be other opportunities to sample the Ross School's brand of relaxation and reflection when the Shanghai Quartet (January 26) and Mia Chung (March 9) perform during the coming months. Attending the concerts is a wonderful way to end the week no matter how stressful it's been.

front lawn as his pre-school age son looks on.

On a more humorous note, there is a delightful image of Frank Sinatra, taken by Phil Stern, leaning against a building, arms outstretched, with his inimitable grin. Also amusing is the photo contributed by Jeff Browns entitled, "Eat", a billboard in the shape of a cross out in the California desert.

Bound to raise a few eyebrows, a photo with accompanying text taken by Duane Michals in 1984 entitled "Salvation," depicts two men, a young gay man and a priest with the priest holding a crucifix to the young man's head as one would hold a gun. The last line of the text reads, "If one does not have the freedom to make his most intimate choices without fear, one does not have any freedom at all." Another shocking image is that of a large black swastika with a human skeleton hung on it as if to suggest crucifixtion. And the amazing thing is that it was taken by Paul Strand in 1936.

One of the most beautiful photos in the book is one that has a lot of personal meaning for Klein. Kelly explains in the preface to her book: "In the course of my research, I came across a photograph by Jeanloup Sieff (on page 127 in Cross) taken in 1965 on the beach in East Hampton. It happens to be an old photograph of my house. In the forground is a small white cross, painted on one of the large jetty rocks. Those rocks are now covered with sand, so I have never been able to see that particular rock, but it is there, buried 100 yards from where I now sit to write these words." •

Sheldon Harnick

Lyricist

By Susan Simm

One cannot think of lyricist Sheldon Harnick without also thinking of his legendary masterpiece, Fiddler on the Roof. I had the great pleasure, on a recent Sunday, of spending several hours with him at the East Hampton home he shares with his wife Margery, a painter, and son, Matthew. Youthful and full of energy, he is, as he exclaimed when he first heard the score for Finian's Rainbow, "incandescent."

To Life...

Sheldon was born in Chicago in 1924. His father was a dentist and his mother cared for their three children at home. "We were a close family and at that time, Jewish parents, in particular, thought that there was a way up for their children if they were at all musical because there were so many successful Jewish concert artists, such as Rubenstein and Heifitz. So we were all taught instruments and I was taught the violin." Sheldon's mother influenced him at a tender age by "writing a little doggerel in honor of every marriage, every bar mitzvah, and every anniversary. So my sister and I did the same. It was fun to work with words."

Some of Sheldon's earliest work was writing material along with a fellow high school student, Stanley Orzey, which they sold to some nightclub comics in the Chicago area. With characteristic wit Sheldon remarks, "the material wasn't very good but then, neither were the comics, so it worked out." Sheldon describes this period in his life as "very exciting" as he was beginning to find his way toward the theatre. And then, "all of this stopped when, at the age of 18, I got drafted. That changed my life."

Far From the Home I Love...

In terms of his career, the most important event to occur while Sheldon was in the army was meeting a man named Sol Lerner. Sol, who had been a theatrical agent in civilian life and now organized shows for the soldiers on stage, was impressed with Sheldon's performance. Sheldon recalls Sol saying, "If we come through this alive and you decide to go into show business, look me up in New York." At this time, however, Sheldon still wanted to be a violinist. "When the war ended I went to Northwestern University because I knew that they had a superb student musical every spring. My first year there, while studying to be a violinist, I contributed one song and...I got the bug. By my final year, I had written half the show." A friend, Charlotte Rae, went to New York for the Christmas holidays and returned with the score to Finian's Rainbow. "I loved the score, and particularly, the lyrics. They were so clever and there was such a sense of fun with words. But it wasn't just word play. He was always trying to say something that had social meaning and that really got to me." Still, it wasn't until after being told by a doctor that he was suffering from muscular and nervous exhaustion that Sheldon finally gave up on the idea of being a concert violinist. "So I went to New York and Sol Lerner said that he would help." The year was 1950.

Matchmaker, matchmaker...

"Those were still the days of Broadway revues. My first song, The Boston Beguine, appeared two years later in Leonard Sillman's New Faces of 1952. It was sung by Alice Ghostly and she stopped the show with it every night. This opened doors for me."

Unfortunately, by 1957, television was becoming the predominant venue for revues: The Jackie Gleason Show, Sid Caesar, etc. and "they wiped out revues on Broadway and with them, my livelihood." Sheldon turned to "industrial shows" (tools used by companies to help their salesmen sell new products) and there he met Jack Cassidy who in turn introduced him to the composer with whom he would collaborate for years: Jerry Bock.

Sunrise, Sunset...

Their first collaboration, as songwriter and lyricist, was The Body Beautiful, a musical about boxing. "In many ways, maybe I should never have accepted the show because I literally had no interest in boxing. It was a flop and I really thought, 'well, I had my chance and it's over.'" The next offer Jerry got came from Harold Prince and Bobby Griffith, producers of The Pajama Game and Damn Yankees, and it was a musical about New York's Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia. "I wrote some sample lyrics, Jerry wrote some music to go with them and...I got the job. Fiorello, which opened at the Broadhurst Theatre in 1959, was one of the most important turning points in my life because now I was (I hate the phrase!) a 'bankable property'. That was truly the beginning and, to my great delight we (Jerry, novelist Jerome Wideman, director George Abbott and myself) won a Pulitzer Prize."

She Loves Me, which was produced in 1963 and was also directed by Harold Prince, "became a cult show: there weren't that many productions. We had to wait thirty years, until 1993, for a revival at the Roundabout Theatre. This time, the critics wrote love letters to it and it is still performed around the country, to this day."

Sheldon and Jerry's next collaboration didn't need thirty years to find its place in history even though it was, ironically, one tough sell. I am, of course, referring to Fiddler on the Roof.

"Around 1962, a friend gave me a novel by Sholom Aleichem and we (Jerry and I) took it to a man named Joe Stein. Joe said, 'I love it but it is way too long for a musical. See if you can find something else by Aleichem' So we found a book called Tevye and His Daughters, and we thought, 'there is a musical here, filled with comedy and pathos, but it is probably for a Jewish audience.' But if we do our jobs right, maybe it will run a year, a year and a half, enough time to pay back the investors. So we got the rights and decided, right at the beginning, to aim the show at a broad audience. Only a few Yiddish words would be used, to add 'salt and pepper'."

If I Were a Rich Man...

Harold Prince, who declined to come on board as producer initially, changed his mind after Jerome Robbins agreed to direct. At the backer's auditions, Sheldon recalls,"we discovered that many of the women who booked theatre parties were Jewish and they were very nervous because they thought that their audiences were going to be very sensitive about this being a Jewish show. So, at the end of the auditions, Harold Prince would make a real pitch saying, 'now remember! This is going to be funny, we're going to have Zero Mostel, there will be a lot of comedy, a lot of romance'. He would really try to sell it but it was hard to get people to put money into a show that seemed so Jewish in those days. Also, the show ended with a Jewish community going into exile, which was tragic, and so it took a lot of auditions to raise the money."

Miracle of miracles...

Fiddler on the Roof opened in Detroit at the Fisher Theatre. The Fisher agreed to a three-week engagement if the show promised to stay on for five weeks. Sheldon remembers thinking, "Oh my God! At the end of three weeks, what if there are no more audiences left? We will close in Detroit! We thought, 'well, let's pray for good reviews.' But when we got to Detroit, there was a newspaper strike." In Detroit, they discovered that the show worked, but also that it was too long. " On opening night, I think the curtain came down about midnight, and a lot of people left. But they left under circumstances (this may sound paradoxical) that were very encouraging. They left because they obviously had to get back for their babysitters or to catch a train or because they had to get home for other reasons but, as they left, they walked backwards up the aisle, very slowly. Obviously, they did not want to leave! They wanted to see how the show ended."

When the show opened in Washington, Sheldon said, "people in Detroit must have called their friends" because there were long lines at the box office before the show opened and he thought, "This is great". But when Fiddler opened in New York, despite long lines again, reviews were mixed. "I remember one reviewer complaining about 'everyone being exiled at the end. Why couldn't they do something more positive?' But this was also the only time in my life when I thought, IT DOESN'T MATTER! The show works and the fact that we aimed for universal appeal paid off." This fact was much in evidence when, at the Actor's Fund Benefit matinee performance, Sheldon's friend "Florence Henderson came running up the aisle and said, 'Sheldon, this is about my Irish grandmother!' It has been an extraordinary experience, that show, and thank God! It keeps going."

Jerome Robbins has had a tremendous influence on Fiddler's longevity. Robbins' parents took him to Poland at the age of six to see where their ancestors had come from and even at the age of six he remembered that trip to Poland vividly. He realized that, during WWII, communities like that were destroyed and it became his goal, his mission, to use Fiddler to give those villages another twenty-five years of life, on the stage. He was like a man obsessed to do it and the show was the beneficiary of his need. It is now thirty-six years and so he was much more successful than even he realized.

What is Fiddler's future? Sheldon says that, "we are in the process of doing yet another film version. We've been negotiating with two men, Craig Zadan and Neil Meron, who have been doing musicals for television, very successfully. They are backed by the Disney Corporation and we are in negotiation with them now and hope to produce another Fiddler because the first one was done thirty years ago, in 1971. Hopefully, if it's successful, it will be released commercially."

Tradition...

The future of theatre is threatened by high costs and it sometimes seems as if the golden age is over, replaced by movies and television. Sheldon, looking at the stage from his historical vantage point, echoes these sentiments; "The costs have kept going up and so the ticket prices get raised; they are already raised to a point where theatre-going is a luxury, not a habit, like the movies. And that's dangerous because instead of seeing four or five shows a year people may settle for one or two. The other thing that worries me (and I don't think that this is worrisome to the audiences), is that because shows now cost so much to capitalize ($10,000,000 is not unusual for a musical), it takes a long time for them to pay the investors off and, consequently, the audience they aim for has to be even broader than usual, and that means, by and large, less sophisticated. This disturbs me because I grew up in a tradition where lyrics had to be sophisticated and witty, and it does still happen. But Disney has discovered that there is a huge market for an audience that's somewhere between 12-18 years old. This worries me because I'm not sure of my place in it. What is encouraging, however, is that when revivals are done of the old-style musicals I grew up watching, they are very successful and I can watch and say, 'Aha! There is still a place for me here.'"

Now I Have Everything...

I asked Sheldon what moment, out of all the incredible moments that make up his career, stands alone in his mind. He replied, "Well, the moment that immediately comes back (and so it must be more important than I previously thought), takes place on the theatre balcony during the opening of Leonard Sillman's New Faces of 1952. I was permitted to attend the opening, provided that I purchase a ticket, and when Alice Ghostly came out on stage to a cheering crowd and sang The Boston Beguine, I just sat there and wept. It was a profoundly satisfying moment. I thought, 'I'm in New York for only two years and my troubles are over.' I didn't know that it would take another seven years before I would be able to make a living in musical theatre!" •

The Sheltered Islander By Sally Flynn

OBSERVATIONS OF A NEW ISLANDER # 133
PASS THE POSSUM

Thanksgiving 2000, whodda thunk it? I have always wondered what the first Thanksgiving was like, so I did some research.

Everyone knows the Pilgrims who sailed to this country aboard the Mayflower were originally members of the English Separatist Church (a Puritan sect). They were ultra-fundamentalist right-wing political radicals who advocated the overthrow of the English government because of its corruption. England was glad to get rid of these self-righteous political agitators.

They initially went to Holland and tried to set up camp there, but found the Hollanders too corrupt also. So, like any self-respecting group of religious extremists, they sought to get away from all outside influences.

The Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock on December 11, 1620. Their first winter was horrible. They were sick, hungry and forced to immediately contend with a raw wilderness. At the beginning of the following fall, 46 of the original 102 souls who sailed on the Mayflower died.

The Pilgrims did have a feast after their first harvest in 1621. Their first harvest was huge. Naturally, to thank God, they had a feast. Why a feast? Because their religion forbade dancing, singing and any other activities that might cause one to be happy, so what was left? A feast! We call this "The First Thanksgiving." This is the way the feast was described in a first-hand account presumably by a leader of the colony, Edward Winslow:

"Our harvest being gotten in, our governor sent four men on fowling, that so we might after a special manner rejoice together after we had gathered the fruit of our labors. They four in one day killed as much fowl as, with a little help beside, served the company almost a week. At which time, amongst other recreations, we exercised our arms, many of the Indians coming amongst us, and among the rest their greatest King Massasoit, with some ninety men, whom for three days we entertained and feasted, and they went out and killed five deer, which they brought to the plantation and bestowed on our governor, and upon the captain and others. And although it be not always so plentiful as it was this time with us, yet by the goodness of God, we are so far from want that we often wish you partakers of our plenty."

While we can't be positive about how the first feast actually went, we can deduce some things based on probability. Most likely, the feast was eaten outside since the Colonists didn't have a building large enough to accommodate the whole settlement and guests. The feast included fish, berries, watercress, lobster, dried fruit, clams, venison, and plums. There were no domestic cattle for dairy products. There was no potato salad, since the potato was considered by many Europeans to be poisonous. Pumpkin pie wasn't there either and it was noticed ...

"What no pumpkin pie? What kinda feast are these pilgrims putting on?"

At least they have turkey."

"Yea, but they roasted it on a spit and they didn't put in any stuffing."

"Ohhh, yea... I love those spicy little cubes....."

"And mincemeat pie? I ask ya, how hard is it to make mincemeat?"

"C'mon, they made these nice little biscuits, look, they got little happy faces on them."

"We gotta show them how to throw a feast. I feel so stupid sittin' here with this paper pilgrim hat on my head."

"Ah, ya gotta admit though, they have cute party favors. Look, I got a temporary tattoo of the Mayflower on my arm, see? And the little turkey feather drink stirrers, cute..."

This "thanksgiving" feast was not repeated in 1622. In 1623, there was a severe drought. The pilgrims prayed as a community for rain. The next day saw a long, heavy rain. Another day of Thanksgiving was declared. Their Indian friends were invited again.

"Oh Corncob, look, they got pumpkin pie!"

"Yea, my sista, Pretty Pink Feather, gave them the recipe."

"Lousy punch though...."

"They don't understand the art of fermentation, Chief."

"Okay, we'll put that on the list to teach them

"C'mon... there's, what, a hundred of them? We could take 'em in one raid."

In October of 1777 there was a Thanksgiving celebration proclaimed in all 13 colonies to commemorate the victory over the British at Saratoga.

George Washington proclaimed a National Day of Thanksgiving in 1789. It was disputed by many colonists. Many felt that the hardships of a few Pilgrims did not justify a national holiday. They formed a party known as the Poopers. They abide to this day. A magazine editor, named Sarah Josepha Hale, wrote many editorials advocating a national day of solemn gratitute. She kept at this for forty years, writing editorials and letters, haraunging officials, and generally driving everybody around her nuts. Finally in 1863, President Lincoln proclaimed the last Thursday in November as a national day of Thanksgiving.

The date for Thanksgiving was changed a couple of times in our history. It was finalized as the fourth Thursday in November in 1941. Thanksgiving was officially declared by Congress to be a legal holiday. So eat, drink and chase Mary! • elaine k.g. benson, her daughter's column

Having left the Hamptons for a few days I thought I would find some warmer temperatures. Usually Las Vegas reminds me of balmy desert winds and sitting by a swimming pool. These last few days were as cold or colder than New York and certainly not conducive to sun bathing. I was glad I had packed after watching The Weather Channel. It was still colder in Texas and the reports of sleet and hail in Georgia reminded me of houses with no central heat and in many cases no insulation. I have been colder in Mexico than Northerners would ever believe. The reason is simple. The houses are not built for cold weather. My house in the Baja has a fireplace but no other means of heating. When the wind blows and the fog rolls in it can be downright chilly.

Las Vegas has grown since my last visit a few years ago. My friends, who flew in from Mexico to celebrate their anniversary, stayed at the Venezian. There is a canal on the second floor that runs about a quarter mile. There are full size gondoliers. The canal is lined with shops and there is a ceiling of clouds with the feeling of late afternoon. The clouds seem to move overhead as you walk under them. It is impossible to know what time of day or night it is outside. It feels like you are outside.

On Saturday I headed over to the All American Sports Park which is near the airport. Comedy Central hosted "Battlebots". Watching Battlebots is a lot like watching boxing. The ring is similar. Two robots battle for a few rounds. They are given points. The best robot goes on to fight again. My favorite robot, "Mauler," built by a team that included my stepson, didn't last very long but put on a great show. "Mauler" got hit early on and went up on one edge and spun like a top. Unfortunately "Mauler" landed upside-down and a large hammer in the corner of the ring came down on "Mauler's" underbelly and started knocking things loose. The round was over quickly. My stepson and his friends spent the afternoon reworking the robot and in the evening "Mauler" was able to take part in the "rumble". I missed that fight but I'm told "Mauler" did a lot of damage.

Battlebots is one of the most popular shows on Comedy Central. What seems wonderful to me is watching the teamwork involved in making and fighting these robots. "Mauler" was built by the Tilford family along with my stepson, Kim Knollenberg. Kim is a machinist. He has spent hundreds of hours working on the design and fabrication. He works with Charlie Tilford and his sons. On Sunday "Mauler" was taken away in an ambulance for publicity sake. On Monday, the pit crew drove the robot back home to silicone valley. I come away with a great memory, some coasters, and a few "Mauler" bumper stickers. I am grateful to Dan's Papers for the chance to see and record the event. If it weren't for my press pass they never would have let me take photos. The event was sold out and I was saved by the fact that I would write about "Battlebots". These days, I write about everything that happens to me and around me. I encourage everyone to keep a journal. I've asked one of my friends to write a daily poem or Haiku. He was complaining that he wanted to write every day but was feeling lazy. It seemed easy to ask him to write for me.

It is almost time for the annual meeting of the John Steinbeck committee, which helps support the writing program at Southampton College. We have to pick the recipient of the annual John Steinbeck "writer of the year" award. Next year's "Meet the Writers Book Fair" will take place on May eleventh. We start the preparations now for the May event. The book fair is always the official re-opening of the Elaine Benson Gallery. This past May we honored Dava Sobel. There are so many talented writers in our area that it is always an interesting process. I'm fortunate that the Steinbeck committee has allowed me to succeed my mother as Chair of the committee. I'm fascinated by who is nominated and I make it a point to read some of the work by the honored author before presenting the award each year.

By the time this paper comes out we should know more about the resolution of the political battle. "Saturday Night Live" has already gotten a lot of play out of the last few weeks of competition. Comedy Central may want to invest in a new form of entertainment. There must be a way to combine the popularity of "Battlebots" and the news to make a new show to compete with "Saturday Night Live" and CNN. We can call it something like "PBBB", (Political Battle Ballot Bot). In Las Vegas they can call it, Political Ballot Battle Bets. It's all a gamble at this point.

years ago in dan's papers

TWENTY YEARS AGO
"He Rode In From The West"
November 21, 1980

Two days after Ronald Reagan became President on January 20, 1981, a very strange thing happened to our high inflation, high unemployment, sputtering economy. The monthly wholesale price index appeared showing a drop of 0.4%.

"Quite remarkable," said Burton Maikel, who is Chairman of the Price Stabilization Board. "This is the first DECREASE we have seen in the wholesale price indicator in ten years. Probably just a momentary hitch."

But the next day, the monthly report on housing starts appeared. For the month of December. starts were up almost 11%, the largest rise since 1975.

"Very confusing," said Leif Olsen, chairman of economic policy at Dun and Bradstreet.

The next day's economic report was the monthly gross national product (CNP). Seasonally adjusted and figured in 1977 dollars, it was up an astonishing 6%. Nothing like this had happened to the gross national product since records had first been kept in 1948.

All over the nation, in fact, all over the world, economists began to debate the meaning of this very sudden and very extraordinary turn of events in America. Was there something the economists had overlooked? Was there some new fact they had failed to put into their computers?

All predictions had been that the American economy would just continue to struggle along, going neither up nor down any time soon.

Two days later came the monthly inflation report, and it was astonishing. Inflation had slowed from the usual 12% annual rate to just 3%. In one month, the entire inflation problem had just ceased to exist.

"This will probably mean that we've just had a terrific rise in unemployment," inflation fighter Alfred Kahn said gloomily upon reading the monthly statistic.

But the next day, when the unemployment figures appeared, it showed that this was not the case at all. Unemployment had dropped to just 4.6%, down almost three full percentage points in just one month.

President Reagan, who had assumed the Oval Office less than a week before, was as befuddled by it all as everyone else.

"Things seem to be getting brighter," he said in a speech to Congress. "And pretty soon we may be making some suggestions about how to deal with things even further."

At this juncture, less than one week into his Presidency, Ronald Reagan of course, hadn't done a thing. He was still busy appointing members to his Cabinet.

The following day there appeared the monthly report from the big Three Auto Makers in Detroit. Sales for the month were up an amazing 6% while sales for Japanese imports had dropped to almost nothing.

'They're just buying American," Lee Iacocca said to a cheering group of Chrysler employees.

All over the nation, steel plants began to re-open, shoppers began to flood the department stores and men began going back to work. A major new oil find was announced in a previously untapped part of Oklahoma and in California, a computer firm announced a new breakthrough in computer technology that put America almost twenty years ahead of the Russians.

The economists were dumbfounded. Nothing in their calculations showed there was the slightest possibility that any of this could happen.

"We seem to have left something out of our calculations," Paul Volker, Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board said.

But the economists went over their numbers and there had been no mistake. The rebirth of America, which had begun the moment that Ronald Reagan had taken office, and which was now in its second week, had come from no rational explanation.

On January 2, there appeared the composite of economic indicators, a reliable barometer that showed the direction in which the country was heading. It was up a record 4.4%.

And then, because the reason had been there all the time, just waiting to be discovered, it just drifted out into the national consciousness.

"It is Ronald Reagan," Harold Williams of the Securities and Exchange Commission said. Ronald Reagan rode in from the west and now things are all right again."

"That's got to be it," said Otto Eckstein of Data Resources. "The arrival of Ronald Reagan is the only variable in the equation."

American economic life had been rescued by a myth.

Within days, as the truth of the matter became known around the world, leaders began to topple, to be replaced by mythic figures. Richard Burton became Prime Minister of England. Jacques Cousteau took over France, and Pele became President of Brazil. The economies of each of these countries immediately boomed.

If we'd only elected John Wayne President in 1968," said Paul Volker, "we could probably bave avoided all the problems of the last ten years."

The next day, some American astronauts flying a homemade rocket, landed once again on tbe moon.

"THE ROCKY HORROR SHOW" OPENS ON BROADWAY

Richard O' Briens 1975 Cult Classic The Rocky Horror Show was revived on Broadway Wednesday night at The Circle In The Square Theater. The cast is incredibly talented and the show remains as outrageous and campy as ever. A star-studded party at The Supper Club followed the performance and lasted well into the night. This cult phenomenon remains an undisputed champion with the audience-and no wonder: the press release describes the show as one of simultaneous orgasm.

"IMAGES OF THE SPIRIT" OPENS AT THE PARRISH ART MUSEUM....

Mexican Graciela Iturbide, celebrated photographer, gave a talk about her native land and the pre-Hispanic culture that many of her photographs illuminate. Graciela brings a "deeply personal" and "poetic vision" to the Mexican artistic tradition of exploring "issues of identity, diversity, and selfhood." This fabulous exhibit includes 100 works that span the artist's dedicated career of work.

COUPLES

Mort "Skip" Hamburg and Catherine Whitney have collaborated on a book that celebrates couples. Many of the people who are captured in this delicious book live in the Hamptons, and why not, since coupling is a long standing tradition there. Joan Hamburg wife and radio host, and their kids "Meet the Parents" writer John (Hey John where did that material come from?) and daughter web entrepreneur Elizabeth were there to honor Mort. Several of the couples from the book were also on hand and holding hands. Yes, everyone in the book is still married...that's why it would be difficult to do this kind of book in LA.

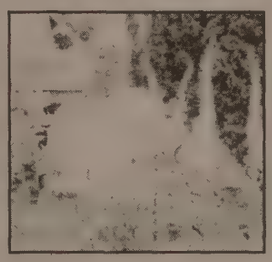
Claire Murray: From Traditional Crafts To Timeless Treasures

Claire Murray's passionate interest in reviving the traditional craft of rughooking began with seminars in the Shakespearean gardens of her historic Nantucket Inn. Today Claire Murray is known worldwide for her signature designs as well as the richness of her unique color palette. These heirloom quality, 100% wool, hand hooked rugs are perfect treasures to be shared with generations to come. Create your own winter wonderland with her cheerful silhouettes and capture the essence of the season.



Welcome your guests into your home this season with this peaceful winter scene found in Claire's Christmas Goose. A graceful Canada Goose floats in a winter wonderland bordered by festive ribbon, pinecones and holly. A colorful cardinal rests upon the shoulder of a jolly snowman wrapped in a warm scarf and mittens. Perfect for enjoyment beyond the holidays, this perky snowman silhouette will warm your heart and home during the cold winter months.

Oh tannenbaum! The beacon of Claire's new holiday collection is complete with gingerbread men and candy canes. From the vast array of gifts beneath, to the shining star atop, the Christmas Tree silhouette is the perfect accessory in every holiday home.

The Holiday Package silhouette wrapped in a festive red bow is a delightful way to salute the holiday season in your home. Also, photo albums, journals and frames, beautifully packaged ceramic and porcelain dinnerware. Needle art kits, woven throws, many coordinating home accessories and gift items.

Claire Murray has stores on Nantucket, Martha's Vineyard, Osterville, and West Barnstable on Cape Cod and several others in New England, including Vermont and Maine as well as Southampton, historic Charleston, Carmel by the Sea and Santa Barbara. Handcraft enthusiasts can make their own masterpieces from the wonderful collection of needlepoint, cross- stitch and rug kits found in her store on route 6A. Rug hooking classes and workshops are also offered in all Claire Murray stores.

The Southampton store is conviently located at 40 Jobs Lane at the Fountain Circle and happy to serve you for your holiday gift shopping!

NO MORE BLACK FRIDAYS

Lines, lines and more lines. For many, holiday shopping spells waiting forever to purchase thoughtless gifts for their loved ones. Sound harsh? Unfortunately, this situation becomes a seasonal reality for most of us. Whether you hold a full time job, work as a stay-at-home parent, or simply consider yourself a busy person, taking the time to sift through the crowds in search of the perfect gift can be a daunting task. That's where the Internet comes in. This season try shopping on your own time without the pressure.

UNIQUE GIFTS

www.sophiesboutique.com One of my favorites, this online boutique offers exquisite jewelry and elegant evening handbags among other classy accessories. Explore Sophie's gift choices and choose a piece of unparalled jewelry for that special one in your life.

www.redenvelope.com- Whether you are looking for a holiday gift for your mother or boss, this site boasts a varied selection of knickknacks for a range of prices. Get started on your shopping escapade by choosing from Occasion, Recipient, Lifestyle, or Shops.

www.eziba.com- Selling handcrafted goods from around the world, you can be sure anything you buy will be truly unique. In fact, you can even purchase "rare finds" on this site, including a thirteen pound seated Burmese Buddha.

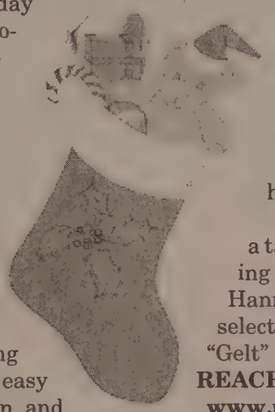
www.hallofsports.com- If it's a sports fanatic that you are shopping for this holiday season, look no further. Purchase memorabilia and collectibles of the sport, athlete, or team of your choice.

www.museumshop.com- Give a "gift of culture" this season. Browse the museum shops of the world for that perfect Klee print or the catalog of the exhibition you had enjoyed so much at the Musee D'Orsay in Paris.

TOYS! TOYS! TOYS!

www.fao.com- Visit FAO Schwarz's online store to purchase virtually any toy imaginable. Your shopping experience promises to be dangerously easy because of the site's enormous selection and customer-friendly layout.

www.smarterkids.com- Offering educational tools and gifts that nurture and encourage a child's learning process, smarterkids.com proves that learning can be fun. Create a wish list that can be emailed to relatives and friends.



DECORATING FOR THE FESTIVITIES

www.iparty.com- Hosting this holiday's festivities? Simply choose your holiday from the "seasonal" menu and quickly learn how useful this party planning and supplies site can be.

www.rockyknob.com- Why not order your Christmas tree online? With free delivery east of the Mississippi and reasonable prices, buying a Pine, Spruce, or Fir has never been easier.

www.judaicaonline.com- If it's a talking dreidel you have been searching for, look no further. Shop for classic Hannukah products, including a large selection of timeless Menorahs, chocolate "Gelt" coins, and sterling silver dreidels.

Shop 'til You Drop With Maria Tennariello

Well, Thanksgiving is here and the stores are really buzzing with shoppers getting ready for the holidays. While the weather is holding out, let's do some shopping!

Starting out in Hampton Bays, I dropped Tino my German schnauzer off at the Shinnecock Animal Hospital for his yearly check up and grooming. If you are looking for some great gifts and toys for your best friend, your pet, you will find everything you need here. There are tons of leashes, collars, toys, carriers, and beds, grooming supplies, treats and special foods. Tino sat through his shots, while I shopped my little heart out for his Christmas presents. Of course I hid them in the trunk so he will be surprised for Christmas. Call 723-0500 for a grooming by "Donna", ask for Sharon or Lisa to make your appointment for veterinary or grooming services.

Off to Val's Closet on Montauk Highway in Hampton Bays to catch the huge sale that is happening right now. You will find designer clothing at incredible low discount prices for all occasions. Check it out!

East Hampton's Ashawagh Hall is gearing up for the holidays with its "6th Indonesian Textile and Holiday Craft Exhibit Display and Sale" featuring fine crafts and textiles of Southeast Asia. A new shipment has just arrived for holiday shopping including Ikat weavings, masks, artifacts, unique baskets of all shapes and sizes, woodcarvings, tapestries, antique Ikat clothing, accessories, unique handcarved ornaments, silver jewelry, sarongs, teak furniture, home furnishings, fabulous Budda's sculptures and much more. This shopping extravaganza starts Friday, November 24, through Sunday November 26. Call for the time schedule at 324-9802.

Looking for designer consignment clothing for men and women? Look no further, at mint on Spring Street in Sag Harbor you will find new and gently worn clothing and accessories with designer names at discount prices.

Heading to East Hampton to pick up my menu for my "Thanksgiving Dinner" (shhhh, don't tell anyone!). Luigi's Italian Specialties on Pantigo Road will be doing my entire dinner except for the coffee... My family will be arriving early on Thursday and everything will be ready to serve and eat. Luigi's has a full menu for any occasion including the Christmas holidays and take it from me the food here is authentic Italian... We here at Dan's Papers order our dinner for the entire staff on production night and there is never a morsel left over! Call Luigi's at 631-329-0558 for information. Trust me on this one!

And it's Biba time again! Biba Southampton (Jobs Lane) and Biba East Hampton (Newtown Lane) is showing off her wares at the Parrish Presents at the Parrish Art Museum with a table full of holiday gift giving items. There are great Pashmina's in solids, tye dyes, sequins, embroidered and feathers in every color. Look for the some of the best Austrian crystal, faux jewels, coats, jackets, and one of a kind Sachi velvet and beaded handbags for every occasion. Also both locations are ready for you to choose your holiday gifts for everyone, for every occasion on your holiday shopping list. The "Parrish Presents" shopping spree starts on Friday, November 24 through Sunday, November 26. Be there, I will.

Getting the holiday table ready for your family and friends? Call the Sag Harbor Florist and Gift Shop on Bay Street in Sag Harbor, 725-1400 to order your Christmas centerpieces early. I have already ordered mine for my Thanksgiving table and for my mantle. You can choose from their vast selection of Dutch and exotic flowers and beautiful flowering plants, or silk and dried flowers. They have it all and all can be custom designed to suit your personal décor.

The next few weeks we will be doing some serious Christmas and Holiday shopping, so get ready to soak those feet!

I would like to wish everyone a happy and healthy Thanksgiving.

Until next week. Ciao and Happy Shopping!

Holiday Crafts with Babs

Thanksgiving is over and the count down to Christmas has already begun. Everywhere you go there are crowds of people in a rush to purchase their holiday gifts. A stress free way to deal with the holidays is to make your own gifts. It's creative, fun, and best of all, these projects take less time than finding a parking place. So show your friends and family you care by taking the time out to create a beautiful handmade gift. They will truly appreciate it.

Here are some creative gifts I've made. I hope they will spark your creativity.

PINECONE WREATH

This very rewarding project is a great gift for anyone and costs very little to make.

Materials:

Styrofoam wreath
8" in diameter by 2" thick; green is best.
Floral Tape
Pinecones (around 50-60 medium size)
Glue gun, and plenty of glue sticks
(I used at least ten of the really long ones)

1. The first thing I did was wrap floral tape around the styrofoam. This was only necessary because I could only find white 8" x 1" wreaths in the craft store. With pinecones as big as I had you really need two inches, so I taped two together. 2. Start by gluing pinecones around the inside ring, overlapping as you go around, one left, one right, one left, one right, and so on. 3. Glue pinecones around the outside ring, once again overlapping as you go around. Tightly pushing down and holding the pinecone a few seconds will help secure the pinecone to the wreath. 4. Glue the pinecones to the top of the Styrofoam wreath, gluing one to the left and then slightly overlapping, glue the other pinecone to the right. Do this all the way around. Please be very careful not to touch the hot glue after it comes out, it is very hot! I ran into the problem of very sticky fingers from the sap on the pinecones. If you have latex gloves handy, I'm sure, that would eliminate that problem.

WINTER/HOLIDAY TOTE BAG

This tote bag can be given alone as a gift or can be used as a gift bag to carry gifts.

Materials:

A craft tote bag (I used 13 1/2" x 13 1/2")
Blue Felt 8 1/2 h x 6"w
(stiffed felt is easier to work with)
White felt (1 piece 3 1/2" h x 6" wide, and one piece 4"h X 3"w)
Black, dark blue, orange felt, (scraps)
Fabric marker (red and black)
Five buttons
Ribbon (to make a small bow)
Glue gun and one long glue stick (if glue gun is not available try using self-adhesive felt)

1. Lay out tote bag on flat workspace. 2. Trim 8 1/2 x 6" wide blue felt with pinking sheers, glue the outside edges of the blue felt in place in the center of the canvas tote. 4. Cut a "S" along the top of the 3 1/2"x6" white felt to look like snow. Trim sides and bottom only with pinking shears. Glue white snow on the bottom, overlapping the blue. 5. Use the 4" x 3" white felt to make the snowman. I drew three overlapping circles lightly with a pencil, top diameter about 1 inch, middle 1 1/2 inches, and bottom 2 1/2 inches. Cut outside line to make the snowman all one piece. 6. Using scraps of felt cut two thin skinny strips around an inch long. 7. Place the snowman in the center and mark lightly with a pencil where you would like the arms to be. Very carefully glue the arms and then glue the snowman so the arms are behind the white felt body. 8. Cut out mittens, hat, and carrot nose and carefully glue down. (remember glue is hot!) 9. Make a bow with ribbon and glue onto the hat. 10. With the black fabric marker give your snowman two eyes and a mouth, just simple dots will do. 11. Using the white fabric paint pen make little dots on the blue felt, to look as if snow is falling. 12. With the red fabric marker, make dash lines, 1/4 inch in from the felt edge, all around 13. Glue button on each corner on the red lines, one bottom on middle circle of snowman. 14. I advise you to practice on a scrap piece first. Write with the black felt marker, a cute saying such as "Cold Hands, Warm Heart", "Let it Snow", etc. I find writing in children's font with dots on the ends to work best. This project was fun, easy and took me around a half an hour.

Personalize Your Holiday Greetings

Instead of sending the standard holiday card this season, try creating a newsletter that's lively, entertaining and a unique reflection of your family.

Experts from the faculty of The Art Institutes say the two most important things to remember when creating readable and attractive holiday newsletters are to make careful selections about what you include and to stay with a simple, easy-to-read design.

The best way to begin is to head to your local office or computer supply store and look for a simple desktop publishing package. Most are easy to install and use, with prices ranging from $30 to $60.

Next, if you don't already own one, consider purchasing, renting or borrowing a digital camera. According to David Lissy, a desktop publishing instructor with The Art Institute of Colorado, a digital camera is the easiest way of getting your favorite images onto your holiday newsletter. For a basic digital camera, prices start about $300, if you'd rather not purchase one, try renting one locally from a camera store, or better yet, borrow one from a friend.

A simple way to enhance the look of your newsletter, says Steve Butler, a graphic design instructor at The Art Institute of Pittsburgh, is to purchase a basic clip art package. For as little as twenty dollars you can have loads of graphics at your fingertips, many of which will be holiday-themed.

To add family photographs, children's artwork or newspaper clippings to your newsletter, consider purchasing a basic flat-bed scanner. Prices can start as low as $60 and range up to $300, depending on the quality of resolution. If you'd rather not buy one, Butler suggests taking your material for scanning to your local copy center to have them do it for you. Call ahead for prices.

When you begin writing, keep these tips in mind for selecting typefaces. Pick no more than three, one for the body copy, one for headlines and one for decorative uses. Also keep in mind, who's reading your newsletter. If you have older relatives, be sure your font size is not too small (nothing below 14 points).

When it comes time to print out your newsletter,

The Look For Holiday 2000, For Less

Finding that "perfect" gift is always a challenge: shoppers need to consider the latest trends, wardrobe preferences and value-orientated finds. Fashion items, in particular, have become an increasingly popular gift option not only for women but also for men and children as well.

Fashions For Her

Either as a gift or a wardrobe selection, holiday fashion is a wonderful option. At the T.J. Maxx "sweater shop" (the sweater headquarters this season) soft cashmere, options are always a favorite in a wide range of styles and colors. Also look for chenille and wool sweaters in cardigans, turtlenecks, sets and vests.

Evenings glitter when wearing anything taffeta, two-piece ensembles create a myriad of options. Also look for velvet, chiffon and embellished evening wraps featuring beading and embroidery detail.

Wraps in general are one of the number one accessories (and a delightful gift!) Beyond pashmina this season look for wool and knit ponchos in argyle and patchwork designs. Detailing is important: from pashmina with glittering embroidery to ponchos with decorative fringe.

Animal prints continue to reign. From trim on clothing (collars, cuffs) to handbags, skirts, pants and shawls. An animal print piece is a terrific update for anyone's gift list–or a wonderful indulgence for the shopper's own wardrobe.

Dad Delights In Casual Wear

Men are always seeking comfortable casuals, and the options have never been more diverse. Top choices include knit sweaters, shirts (plaid is back in a variety of combinations), mock turtlenecks, comfortable corduroy slacks, tweeds and wool/cotton pants.

Beyond fashion as a gift idea, keep in mind his hobbies and needs, golf, home improvement, desk organizers, shoe shiners, sports gear, etc.

Youths Crave Comfort

Teen fashion is hip, cool and always comfortable! Fleece anything goes – vests, jackets, hats, gloves, etc. She will love sweaters with detail (embroidered, fringe, poncho looks) and he'll adore comfortable flannel plaid shirts, sports logo tees and baggy pants in nylon and denim.

Where to find all this under one big roof? T.J. Maxx of course. "Gift giving should be a fun experience. Remember, it's the little touches that make the difference...keep in mind the recipient's favorite colors, individual style and hobbies as you select your gift items," explains T.J. Maxx spokesperson Laura Cervone. The chain sells brand name, designer merchandise for the entire family and home at prices up to 60% less than department and specialty store regular prices, every day. This holiday season new deliveries of merchandise are arriving daily. And...I can testify to that! Happy holiday shopping!

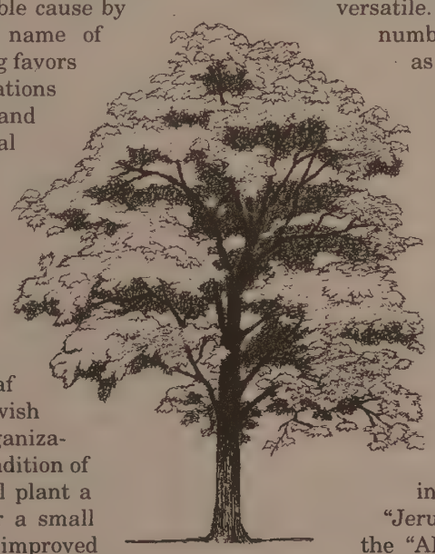
Turn Over A New Leaf – Buy A Tree

This holiday season when you are rooting around for a great gift to give, why not try a tree? For a gift that truly keeps on giving and growing, plant a tree on behalf of a friend, relative or loved one. Planting a tree on someone's behalf is a thoughtful way to mark a holiday or joyous occasion while supporting a worthy cause — the environment.

Many non-profit organizations offer the opportunity to support a noble cause by giving a donation in the name of another. Traditional wedding favors are being replaced with donations to the charity of the bride and groom's choice. The traditional showing of flowers at funerals is also being replaced by donations to charities chosen by family and friends.



If you are shopping for a truly unique gift, try looking past traditional ideas — turn over a new leaf and purchase a tree. Jewish National Fund (JNF), an organization with a long-standing tradition of planting trees in Israel, will plant a tree in someone's honor for a small donation. To date, JNF has improved the land of Israel by planting over 210 million trees and provided luscious belts of green covering more than 200,000 acres.

A Gift for Life

From the moment the sapling is planted it begins establishing its roots in the soil. These saplings grow into mature trees that will improve and beautify the environment for generations to come. Trees defend against the greenhouse effect, prevent soil erosion and protect areas that feed into water sources. As veteran plots of land fill up, adjacent ones are opened, thus continuing the greening of the countryside with thousands of acres of new woodlands.

A Gift for Any Occasion

Gifts of this type are both thoughtful and versatile. They are appropriate for any number of occasions. A tree planted as a gift can serve as a holiday greeting for relatives or co-workers, or as a congratulatory wish upon a graduation or other special achievement. Planting a tree can represent a wish for luck at a birth or celebrate the enduring roots of a relationship on an anniversary or wedding.

Personalizing Your Gift

Choose from a variety of decorative tree planting certificates including "Trees for Israel," "Green Belt Around Jerusalem," "Children's Forest in Israel," the "Unity of Israel," "Jerusalem 3000," the "Holyland" and the "AIDS Memorial Forest."

With each purchase of a tree, JNF sends one of these customized decorative certificates of your choice to the person receiving the gift. Inscribed on the certificate is the recipient's name and your personal message.

A Gift for Any Budget

No matter what your gift-giving budget, JNF offers an alternative for you. Individual trees, including a beautiful certificate, are just $18 and a ring of trees (5) is $90. If you really want to go out on a limb for that special someone, JNF offers a circle of trees (10) for $180 and a garden of trees (100) for $1800.

Trees can be purchased by calling JNF's toll free number, 800-542-TREE (8733) or visit JNF's Online Tree Planting Center at www.jnf.org.

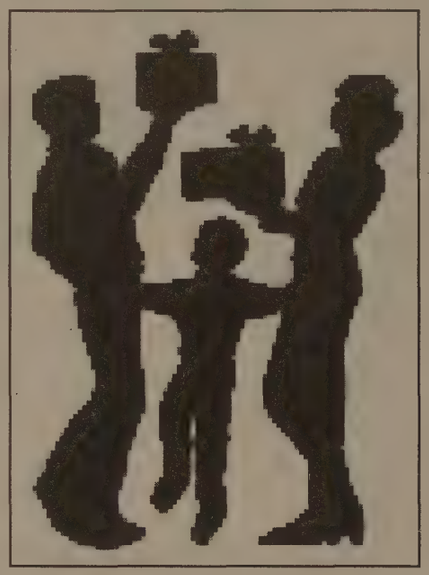
Healthy Holiday Gifts That Last All Year

Don't panic. There are still plenty of shopping days left this holiday season. But before venturing out to tackle your gift list, resolve to shop smarter and healthier this year. Instead of resorting to such expected gifts as neckties, perfumes and fruitcakes, consider buying something that will make a lasting and healthy impression on your friends and family.

More and more people are evaluating their lifestyle. Give them an enjoyable way to improve their health and well-being. What better way to show people you care than by giving them a gift that pays off into the future? Here are a few gift ideas within different price ranges that will help your loved ones have a healthier New Year, and help ensure the gift you buy won't wind up in the closet.

1) Water Filter. Whether it's a water filter pitcher or a faucet mount that attaches right to the tap, a good water filter will do more than simply improve the taste and smell of tap water. It will also improve water quality by reducing potentially harmful tap water contaminants. PUR Water Purification products offer a clean, tasty way to improve your health. Filter installation requires no tools, takes only a few minutes and works on all standard faucets. Plus, the Automatic Safety Monitor Gauge monitors usage and automatically shuts off when the filter needs replacement. To find a store near you, visit www.purwater.com. About $15-$50.

2) Health Club Membership. A good workout may be the world's best stress buster. Many health clubs include complimentary sessions with a personal trainer for new members. Others offer one-on-one appointments with nutritional experts and massage therapists on an a la carte basis. Be sure to tour clubs near the recipient's home or work to find the best and most convenient facility. If you can't afford to give an annual membership, consider picking up the initiation fee or inquire about a trial membership. About $35-$45/month, plus initiation fee.



3) State or County Park Pass. Tell someone to "take a hike" in a nice way, this holiday season. What better way to enjoy nature and get into shape than to go hiking or canoeing in one of our country's beautiful state or county parks? Give the nature-lovers on your gift list a yearlong pass that will allow them to escape from the business of everyday life to the wonders of the great outdoors. Contact your state Department of Natural Resources or County offices, or visit a nearby park office to purchase a pass for the upcoming year. About $20-50.

4) Health and Fitness Magazine Subscription. Give a gift of monthly inspiration and motivation for the continued well-being of a loved one. There are a number of health and fitness magazines for both men and women. Scan a newsstand to get a sense of the most popular and appropriate titles, such as Shape, SELF and Men's Health, or visit their Web sites for detailed subscription information. Magazines can provide helpful insight and useful information on diet and nutrition, equipment and training techniques. About $15-25.

5) Cookbook. For most people, the hardest part of any wellness program is learning to eat healthier. A cookbook is a great gift idea to help guide people toward better cooking and eating habits. And it makes your shopping easy too — just stop by your local bookstore or log onto the Internet to place an order at www.amazon.com or www.barnesandnoble.com. If you order online, remember to allow 2-3 weeks for delivery. About $15-50.

If you're still unsure what to get the people on your list this holiday season, consider a gift certificate to an athletic or health store in their area. A gift certificate is guaranteed to please even the person on your list who is hardest to shop for. He or she can pick out the running shoes, equipment or vitamins needed to jumpstart their fitness plans.

Dan's Little Flower Annual Toy Drive - 2000 - Is Here!

Thanksgiving is here and we all gather around to eat turkey and spend time with our families. Christmas and Hanukah are only weeks away, and we continue or begin our holiday shopping. This is the time of year were families and friends come together to celebrate.

Yet, there are those without families here on the east end of Long Island. Little Flower, located in Wading River, is home to thousands of children and residents of all ages, races, and religions who do not have families to celebrate the holidays with. The organization was founded in 1931 with the mission "to care for infants and children who have lost that most precious possession – their family." But sometimes they need the help of the community. Want a perfect opportunity to give this holiday?

In this season of giving and receiving, as of November 24, collection boxes for our annual Dan's Papers Toy Drive will be in place. These boxes will be wrapped in holiday paper, and hard to miss. We are hopeful that our readers will overflow them with toys and gifts for the children and residents of Little Flower. And with your help the holiday sprit will be passed along.

The children of Little Flower range in age from infants to developmentally disabled adults. To give you an idea of what they need and want we have compiled a wish list. Their wish list includes; arts and crafts supplies, electronic items like radios and video games, action figures, toy cars and trucks, personally grooming items for both boys and girls (aftershave, deodorant, cologne, make-up, combs, brushes, hair accessories, ect.), building block sets, blocks, stuffed animals, puzzles, dolls, baby toys, sports equipment, watches, cameras, jewelry, remote control cars, clothing accessories (hats, gloves, scarves, socks), wallets, purses, and clothing, or even better gift certificates to clothing stores.

The toys and gifts that you donate will be taken to Little Flower by our elves here and Dan's Papers. In order them to select the perfect gift for each person we ask you not to wrap them, and only new gifts are accepted. The drop box location are located within the following stores, so please take a moment to look around you might find the perfect gift for a friend o family member or holiday outfit.

Getting Your Eyes All Aglow For The Holidays

The holidays will soon be upon us and if we can save a few steps, let's do it. In the meantime, take time for yourself over this holiday season, we tend to rush around shopping, cooking, etc., so we truly do neglect ourselves. The time to relax and enjoy this beautiful time of the year.

To date, much has been written on eye shadows. What colors to use with certain color eyes, do/don't match the flecks of color in the eye, do/don't match your wardrobe. It can be mind-boggling. I find a good rule of thumb is to go as natural as possible in the color that you find looks best on you. And we do know those colors. Have you ever looked in the mirror after applying your makeup and just know you are having a bad makeup day? That is how you know. Nine times out of ten it is the colors you have chosen that are throwing you off.

Certain colors just automatically compliment one another. A soft brown with perhaps a touch of pink or yellow can make any eye color pop. Grey with a little pink is another eye stopper. Different shades of one color look well together also and hard to go wrong with.

So what is best, crayon, creme, powders, pencils? I would say all of them, if applied properly. Of course, if you were beginning to have problems with the lid staying still when applying, then a pencil would not be the wise choice. It would tend to drag. In this case creme would work best.

My choice is powder color with very little, if any, mica. Mica being the fine minute particles added to powder products to make a sheen. A good brush is in order also. The little double sponges that come with the compact is fine if you have absolute control over the color, which is next to impossible when completely loaded. The end result is you get too much in one area and end up wiping off half of it. A brush, which as been swiped across the powder and the excess tapped or lightly blown off is your best bet.

A makeup artist's secret is to put a little cornstarch baby powder below the eye area above the cheekbone to 'catch' any fallout. When finished, it can be brushed away. Another secret is to fold a tissue in half and hold under the eye, which when doing yourself, can be quite tricky. Having the lid properly prepared is crucial to keeping your makeup set for minutes or hours. Having a clean face and all the eye moisturizers well set in, are important before you can began. Apply a little of your foundation to the lid and follow up with a little face powder. On the area closest to your lashes, apply your lightest of colors...bring slightly up into the contour or bony area of the lid. Follow up with your darker color...starting at the outer edge of the eye, sweep your color inward, wipe the brush on a tissue if there is too much on it and keep layering over what you have just done. Sweep it up and around to the eyebrow. Blend, blend, blend is the keyword here. You don't want to see where one color ends and the other begins. Blend the two gradually into one another. Under the brow another version of the lighter color can be placed, blending into the contour color. Keep checking in the mirror as you do the other eye the same so that they are as close as possible to one another in shadow intensity.

At this point you may decide to add a liner to the eye. That also is a matter of preference. You can use pencil (powered or dry) or liquid liner. Or what I prefer is eyeshadow applied with a slant brush as close to the lashes as possible. When choosing your mascara, choose a real neutral color like Cover Girls 'Waterproof Marathon Mascara' in a black/brown. Curl your lashes first, again Cover Girl's 'Eyelash Curler' is so easy to use. Heat the curler up with a warm blower first. Make sure it is not too warm by resting it on your upper lip to test. If it is okay there, it will be fine for your eyes. Place the curler on your lashes and press it down...count to five and release. Straighten any crooked lashes out before repeating the process again. Pull the wand out of it's case and wipe with a tissue removing all the clumps of mascara. By doing this first, you will not have to wipe half of it off your lids and cheeks! Apply to your

Jabot Pin -- $375,000

Diamonds are a girl's best friend. This circa 1930 one-of-a-kind platinum pin was been worn on the front of a dress. Today's woman wears this on a lapel of a jacket or toward the shoulder on a dress. The top portion, a fancy vivid yellow pear shape diamond weighing 3.75 cts, separating top&bottom is a detachable straight pin which, passes through the dress fabric, enters into bottom of jabot. This portion contains a cushion cut extremely fine Colombian emerald of deep rich green/blue color&weight of 4.75 cts. Total white diamond weight of the entire pin is 5.40 carats. The entire length of the pin is about 3 inches, and its widest measures 1.25 inches. Available at Gems of the Past, 58B Park Place, East Hampton – 631- 324- GEMS.

Marilyn Monroe Photographs – $4,000 - $10,000

There have been many beautiful women since Marilyn Monroe. But who is there that has her total magic? Nobody has that vulnerability. Marilyn Monroe is the first American goddess. Through the magic of Bert Stern's photography, the light from Marilyn Monroe is still reaching us, still drawing us to her. Along with a book signing by Bert Stern of Marilyn Monroe: The Complete Last Sitting, a great volume of 2571 photographs, takes place at Vered Gallery, Park Place, East Hampton, Saturday November 25, a limited number of his photographs of the great star are available. – 631-324-3303.

Dolce Gabbana Shoes — $295

Click your heels and say, "There's no place like home for the holidays." In an instant you will feel like a million dollars in this lovely Dolce Gabbanna shoe in bright pink brocade with a rhinestone buckle. This shoe is in stores in Manhattan right now; the retail price is $650. These shoes are brand new and come with the original shoebox and felt dust cloth. A fabulous fashion accessory for those holiday parties, they are available at mint, 7 Spring Street, Sag Harbor - 631-725-mint.

FlatTV — Basic Starting at - $10,000

Ever see a TV do this before? The Philips FlatTV gives you choices you have never seen before. It's the first television which can be hung on the wall like a painting (only 4.5" deep). One moment you're engrossed in a docudrama…Then you're in the middle of a high-speed chase. It's a home cinema or it's an art gallery. Its elegant, simple form is a perfect display for your favorite photographs and pictures. It's the future of display. The FlatTV is highly flexible. It can display images from future digital broadcasts, DVD, a laserdisc, a videocassette and multimedia applications. You can see two shows at the same time and much more. Available at Charo's Custom Audio/Video and Telephone Systems, 28 Cameron Street, Southampton – 631-283-4428.

Virtual Golf — $51,000 (delivered and installed)

Enter the world of Full Swing Golf, where technology lets you play, practice, teach and learn on championship courses — year round. No kidding! With this superior technology, each shot is duel-tracked at 60,000 times per second by patented infrared sensors for pinpoint accuracy. With unmatched realism you will experience golfing that recreates all the excitement and pleasure of playing the worlds greatest golf courses. A high-resolution computer generated image of each hole is depicted on the course of choice. The player sees every fairway, green, tree, water hazard and bunker. Six new modes of play give players even more variety, including Scramble, Alternate Shot, Match Play, Skins and Stroke Play. Available at East End Audio Video, 535 County Road 39A, Southampton – 631-283-8181.

Hand-Carved Cat Trunk — $2100

This beautiful hand-carved and hand painted trunk goes well with any décor. Bridgehampton based artist Connie Oshrin creates decorative and functional works of art for your home. Hatboxes, stools, coffee tables and trunks are painted free hand with animals and backgrounds, then enhanced with hand-carved wood animals applied to the surface of the object to create a raised, almost three-dimensional effect. She also paints on cloth and creates incredibly life-like stuffed dogs and cats. She can create and personalize any piece with a carving of your best friend, your cat, dog or bird. Available at Connie Oshrin, Butter Lane, Bridgehampton. Call for an appointment at 631-537-4705.

Saturday, December 2nd – For Love Or Money
Michael J. Fox is the concierge of a fancy New York hotel with enough chutzpah, ambition and goodness to make a million. When it comes to love, see him storm Southampton beach society by helicopter.

Saturday, December 9th – Whispers In The Dark
Murders more than wicked! They are rife with psychopathia sexualis, bondage, sadism and explicit nudity and are all strung out with chills and thrills. The kinky doings include (would you believe?) nice Alan Alda and his extra nice town, Water Mill.

Saturday, December 16th – She-Devil
Meryl Streep is wonderfully wacky as a glamorous novelist who steals unliberated Roseanne Barr's sleaze-bag husband. Roseanne gets satanic revenge of the most evil and outrageous kind. Port Washington and all Jitney stops east will never be the same.

North Fork Shop 'til You Drop with Maria Tennariello

If you're heading to Tanger this weekend, at Tanger II Outlet Mall in Riverhead check out Renfrew Collection which is an American manufacturer of quality womens classic coordinates that are normally sold only in the finest boutiques. In addition to the stores abundant selection of women's fashions for all sizes, there are exceptional discounts this week on silk scarves and belts. Renfrew Collection is right near the food court between Claires Accessories and Ultra Jewelry. Give them a call at 208-1600.

Also at Polo Ralph Lauren Factory Store there is an early shopping event going on this Friday, November 24 at 6 a.m. to 9 a.m. (that's real early!) Get there to receive 15% off on clothing for men, women and children along with accessories, fragrances and furnishings for your home.

A little off the beaten path for me, but definitely worth the trip, on Sound Avenue in lovely Baiting Hollow (right next to the Lobster Roll Resturant), I heard about a magnificent new children's apparel store called Velvet to Denim. As soon as I entered this shop I couldn't' help but notice the the décor which is Victorian and includes a "doll house" dressing room which children will absolutely love, with a wholesome touch of wall paintings by local artist Mary Samuels. Some lablels include Biscotti, Hullabaloo, Dorissa, Cest Chua and IMP. The velvets for the holidays are simply gorgeous, from the Eton suits to flowergirl dresses. On the more casual side, there is also an enchanting collection of coordinates that include citrus colored berber and fleece jacket ensembles with mathching hats.Having a baby or know someone who is? Velvet to Denim has a heavenly selection of infant items which include original hand-knit sweaters and custom bedding. They also carry a complete line of Christening and Communion attire. This shop is truly a gem and worth a visit no matter where you live. It is open daily except Tuesday and the staff is super friendly and knowledgeable and they look forward to assisting you in every way. Trust me on this one. Call for information at 451-5050.

Have you been to the Down Home Store on Main Road in Cutchogue lately? If not, there is a store full of new home furnishings awaiting you. A great spot for gifts or finding a decorative touch to warm up a room for the holidays.

How about thinking ahead about some holiday cheer? At Galluccio Estates Vineyard in Cutchogue, they have just released their '98 Merlot. I am all prepared for my holiday guests with a generous supply of this wonderful wine this weekend. Thank goodness they are all overnight guests! Judging by the winery's past success with this grape, you can expect a winner.

Have a safe and healthy Thankgiving Holiday and enjoy.

Until next time. Ciao and Happy Holiday Shopping!

lashes remembering to get those close to the corner of your eye. Another secret is not to use the tissues that are now coated with Aloe and different additives. They will irritate the eye and really irritate contact lens wearers. Plain Kleenex will do fine. Apply only to the top lashes. By doing the bottom also is defeating what you are trying to do...open the eyes. The same holds true for a liner under the lower lash...it closes down the eye.

Max Factor has pallets of four coordinating colors that are simply beautiful. Choosing the right one for you is all you need to do. L'Oreal's 'Soft Effects Eyecolor Quad' in Woodrose seems to be a universal neutral choice. Also great for the upcoming holidays is Revlon's creamy 'Eye Glow Shadow in Gold Foil,'at $4.50, is a wonderful way to light up your eyes. You will find Borghese holiday gifts for yourself and others simply by going to their website. Eyeshadows, creams and lotions, perfumes, foot care products and many other treasures are all to be had for way below expensive store prices. remember not to go too dark for a background color. "Text printing on dark backgrounds is difficult to read," says Susanne Manheimer, Academic Director of the Design Department of The Art Institute of Los Angeles. Instead, she says to consider selecting a light background and using holiday colors as highlights for headlines or clip art.

Perhaps most important of all, she suggests that you make sure your newsletter is simply laid out and easy to read, don't try to cram too much into it. Remember that half the fun of your holiday newsletter is the enjoyment you and your family will have in creating it and remembering the special times you want to share with others.

CLASSIC CARS WITH BOB GELBER

TURKEYS

Happy Thanksgiving. In the automotive world, sometimes automobile manufacturers have little !#Δ"/'//! to give thanks for, because often their products turn out to be turkeys.

The most famous turkey of modern times was the 1958-1961 Ford Edsel. In that period, Ford decided to grab the public's attention with something completely different. Visually, the Edsel was a disaster. It had just about all of the futuristic design elements of every other car produced,wrapped up in its busy, chrome festooned body design. The gaping grill bares a resemblance to the white horror mask used in all the current "Scream" horror films.

Only 111,000 Edsels were sold, and Ford lost $350 million on this fiasco, the costliest auto industry failure at that time.The historical irony is that today the Edsel is a prized collectable. But it's still ugly.

Another product Ford would like to forget is the 1970-1976 Pinto. I have to admit I always liked the looks of the Pinto, especially the "Sportwagon." Since this was an early attempt at building a subcompact car for Ford, I always felt they put extra effort into making it attractive.

However, there were some very serious safety problems with this pretty little car. It had an automatic transmission that habitually slipped from park to reverse; disconcerting to say the least. Especially since that was considered a minor problem,compared to the Pinto's major flaw: that of turning into a fireball if hit on the rear bumper. Eventually, the explosion problem was found to be caused by a defect in the gas tank venting system. Where have all the Pintos gone? I haven't seen one for years, even at car shows. Have they all exploded into smithereens?

Speaking of small American cars, Chevrolet came out with the Chevrolet Vega in 1971 to compete with the Ford Pinto. If you look up turkey in the dictionary, you might see a picture of a Vega. Like the Pinto, this Chevrolet was a pretty little thing, especially in its station wagon variant. However, just like Ford, the subcompact Vega was built by a company that had scant experience in small car production, so poor quality control was evident everywhere. The car was a rust bucket. The engine, the first all aluminum engine Chevrolet ever produced, was untried. It was a nightmare. For a compact car with a four cylinder engine, it also had terrible gas mileage: 13 to 20 mpg! Like the Pinto, one hardly ever sees Vegas anywhere.Have they all rusted away?

The 1960-1970 Chevrolet Corvair is a sad story. Yes, I guess it could be called a turkey, and it's unfortunate, because by 1970 all the early bugs had been worked out, and it was a darn good automobile. I personally feel it was one of the most attractive economy cars ever produced, especially in the convertible and supercharged Monza coupe models.

Early Corvairs were tail-happy, but no more so than the Volkswagens and Porsches of the same period. Ralph Nader must have had it in for the poor Corvair, because he was behind its demise. It was a trumped up scenario for GM, but the publicity made Nader a household name. A bizarre fact is that when Nader wrote "Unsafe At Any Speed" bombasting the Corvair's safety record, he didn't even have a driver's license! To this day,this still may be true. Because of their extremely good looks, and unique air-cooled rear engines, Corvairs are very collectible. They're low priced collector car bargains, and many survive.

1967 NSU Ro80. Most people have never heard of an Ro80, but this German car was supposed to be the car of the future. Its claim to fame, or to shame, was that it was powered by a revolutionary Wankel engine. It was a beautiful touring sedan, but the engine was hugely unreliable. All the engines blew up at about 10,000 miles and had to be replaced. If you owned the car for 60,000 miles, you can assume the car had six new engines. (Absolutely true!) The story goes, that in Europe, when NSU Ro80 owners passed one another on the road, they would hold up fingers indicating how many engines they had replaced! Today Ro80's are quite collectible. But don't try to drive one more than 10,000 miles.

The 1975-1980 AMC Pacer was originally designed to be powered by the Ro80 engine. For obvious reasons that concept was scrapped and instead it was powered by a six cylinder motor. For an "economy"car the Pacer delivered terrible gas mileage: 14-15 mpg. The Pacer's main claim to turkeydom was its startling, and unusual gumdrop shape that nobody seemed to like. It's absolutely amazing that this car ever made it into production. Not only was this model a terrible sales failure,but it led to the demise of the American Motors Corporation.

Hope I didn't ruin your appetite. Bon appetit!

ART COMMENTARY

With Marion Wolberg Weiss

"IMAGES OF THE SPIRIT" AT THE PARRISH

There's a pattern emerging with recent exhibits at The Parrish Art Museum— one that we welcome with open arms. That pattern is the celebration of multiculturalism, a trend that some may consider "out-of- fashion" by now," but nevertheless one that should always be "in vogue."

The Parrish's previous show featured Jewish art/ artifacts; the current exhibit commemorates Mexican life and times by photographer Graciela Iturbide. While Jewish and Mexican cultures seem to have little commonalities, they both, in fact, emphasize ritual, tradition and family.

There are distinct differences, however, between the two cultures made succinct in this show: the sense of extremes between life and death, for example; and the precarious, yet strong bond with the land. These elements are effectively portrayed in one of the photographer's best-known works, "Angel Woman," where a female figure in native attire is traversing a dangerous path through the mountains. What makes the photo ironic is the boom box that the woman is carrying, a nod to the modern world which most of the photographs avoid.

From this unexpected image we see "expected" images as well, like children dressed up for festivities. The relationship between costumes and rituals recurs in other ways, most especially with "The Day of the Dead" events.

But there are less subtle associations, too. The metaphoric, almost surreal imagery that bonds the isolated people to the barren land recalls Fellini's films, especially Nights of Cabiria. Ms. Iturbide's faces are also as intense and unforgettable as Fellini's.

Another cinematic connection is the magic realistic style which we associate with Mexican art and Spanish filmmaker Luis Bunuel. Ms. Iturbide's pictures also include this style, particularly those that articulate animals' spirituality. We are reminded of Bunuel's The Young and The Damned (a movie made in Mexico) and its dream imagery with chickens/donkeys.

"Angel Woman"

HECTOR de CORDOVA AT THE STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK

Celebrating the same culture takes a somewhat different form in Hector De Cordova's exhibit at The State University of New York at Stony Brook. While these are personal and intimate paintings that pay homage to the land and to people, the spirituality is not as obvious and is certainly more contemporary.

Mr. de Cordova has a charming work featuring a Hispanic bride, an iconic image in Ms. Iturbide's photographs. Even so, the artist here demystifies the figure imbuing it with a sense of universality. Thus, we can all identify with the experience just as we are removed from the bridal experience depicted in Ms. Iturbide's photographs.

Moreover, Mr. de Cordova's landscape pieces don't seem specific either, although it's obvious the sites he paints mean a lot to the artist. In giving the places a universality, however, the images convey a strong spirituality— the same spirituality in Ms. Iturbide's photographs.

The show at Southampton's Parrish Museum will be on view until January 7. Mr. de Cordova's show is at the Social and Behavorial Science Building (Room n-320) on the campus of The State University of New York, Stony Brook, until December 6.

Honoring the Artist: Nancy Colleary

Artist and Westbury resident Nancy Colleary loves simplicity— in life as well as in art. The still life on this week's cover reflects such simplicity to perfection— pears and cheese, with all their pureness and goodness.

Ms. Colleary explains it this way: "These pears, for example, are not just pears; there's a lot going on. There's the beautiful changes of light, for example. There's the shape. It excites me."

It's obvious that Ms. Colleary finds beauty in everyday things, especially fruits and vegetables. "I like to paint all kinds of vegetables, like artichokes," she remarks with enthusiasm, "even though I've never eaten one. My favorite painting has been a pumpkin in a green box."

However, sometimes Ms. Colleary paints chickens, the kind she finds in a photograph. "I'm always going through books, looking for inspiration," she says. "Skies and clouds also motivate me, the way the sun hits them."

It's apparent that Ms. Colleary's greatest inspiration has been Long Island itself, a place where she has spent her entire life. "I never left this zip code," she notes with a laugh. "Since 1987 we've also had a home in Sag Harbor; I love to go to the farmstands out here. I especially like the purple broccoli and Brussel sprouts which we have in the fall."

What about doing a book on all those fruits and vegetables that she's painted? "You know, I considered that," Ms. Colleary answers. "I wanted to do one for each letter of the alphabet. I was surprised at how many I've already done."

Painting comes naturally to Ms. Colleary. "My mom was artistic," she explains. "She was always drawing and making crafts or arranging flowers. My grandfather painted, too. My own daughter is majoring in photography at C. W. Post College."

Ms. Colleary doesn't spend her entire time painting fruits and vegetables, however. She also does wall glazing and puts decorative finishes on furniture.

Ms. Colleary won't be spending her entire life on Long Island either. She's looking forward to an upcoming trip with her daughter to Paris. "I always keep my eyes open," she assures us. "You never know what you'll see."

We understand that Paris has some great produce stands.

Ms. Colleary will be showing her work at East Hampton's Alex Echo Gallery March 16-30.

Guy de Fraumeni's HOLLYWOOD in The Hamptons

DE NIRO'S MASKS OF TRAGEDY AND COMEDY

Our good old towns, of late, have felt a few rumbles from the gastric combustion of Hollywood's over-rich mixture of truckloads of produce dumped into a market that, though up to its neck full, is still greedy enough to keep taking one more helping that may satisfy its appetites. This has kept some actors, like Robert De Niro busier than knives and forks at prime rib dinner specials. Most popular actors seem to be getting tossed, higgledy-piggledy, into over-done stew pots but, Mr. De Niro manages to bubble up to the top intact and still tasting of his initial brilliance . . . even against the heavy dramatic type of roles he's so well suited to.

People laughed (fortunately) when he took on comedic roles like Analyze This (though still Mafia related) and Wag The Dog (weird, shaggy relations under the Capital Dome). Currently, he's at his most laughable in Meet The Parents as an unmitigatably middle brow, would-be Father Of The Bride with a Middle Eastern C.I.A.

Men Of Honor • Meet The Hamptons

background of "seek and destroy", who is as protective of his daughter as he was of the United States. It appears that De Niro knows what's good for him . . . it's an unqualified hit . . . and this by relinquishing Star dominance for ensemble equality.

YOU LAUGHING AT ME?

Now, back to origins. . . he's in Men Of Honor, the substantially true story of the Navy's first black master diver portrayed with restrained power by Cuba Gooding, Jr., that cavalcades, with blustery force over the almost over-whelming hurdles of circumstance and prejudice, personified by his Master Chief, an alcoholic, embittered "red-neck" whose furious personality Mr. De Niro bites into with the same craving Popeye has for a can of spinach. . . producing the same mythic strength. As controlled as Mr. Gooding is in his performance. . . De Niro is seemingly out of control with his scowling face twisted around a corn cob pipe, looking like Popeye. His savage rages, as surprising as his eventual mentoring of the African-American hero, makes this quite old-fashioned Bio-Pic of triumph over adversity and disability a cause for cheering about Black-and-White/Red-White-and-Blue, solid and inspirational entertainment. . . as opposed to Black-and-Blue bruising complaints of lack of up-to-date slickness.

Local interest? De Niro's Meet The Parents Bourgeois abode with the C.I.A. den is in Bay Shore and his real life father's artist's studio added solid, dignified color to Montauk for many years.

Guy-Jean de Fraumeni is the producer / writer / director of award winning European films and Network TV. He has judge the major Film and TV award competitions. He is assisted in his column by Sarah Halsey .

MAYOR KOCH Goes To THE MOVIES

Ratcatcher (+)

This film is a real downer. It is about poverty in Glasgow, Scotland and how it effects an adolescent child, James (William Eadie).

Anyone who sees this film will conclude that the state of poverty shown in the recent film version of the novel Angela's Ashes, which takes places in Limerick, Ireland, was a state of heaven compared with Glasgow.

While I thought that the experience of one hour and a half in a darkened theater seeing the story spin out before me was a worthwhile experience I doubt that the average movie-goer will enjoy seeing it.

Between the Ratcatcher and Billy Elliot, which are both new films depicting children living in poverty, go and see Billy Elliot first.

The story revolves around James (William Eadie), who is the twelve-year-old son of a mother (Mandy Matthews) who tries her best; and of a not-so-bad, unemployed, and occasionally drunk father (Tommy Flanagan).

The family lives in a terrible slum apartment. They are waiting to get into better digs provided by the city.

At the moment, there is a garbage pick-up strike going on and the area is crawling with rats, which often sit on the mounds of garbage that fill the yard. The rats and mice are playthings for the children, especially a retarded kid.

One day, while he is engaging in horseplay, James accidentally drowns a friend. He carries this secret around with him, and tells no one.

James also sees a group of youths sexually use an older girl named Margaret Antic (Leanne Mullen) and participates.

Local officials and bureaucrats visit the family to determine whether they are fit to be given a new apartment. The father worries about their impressions

Poverty is awful, especially for children who are often deprived of positive role models and adequate living conditions.

The Scottish accent is so overwhelming in this flick that it required subtitles. Subtitles should be used in all movies that contain all strong Irish, Cockney, and Scottish accents. Understanding what is being said adds to the enjoyment.

Kippur (+)

This is a very moving movie depicting a small segment of the 1973 Yom Kippur War. The surprise attack launched by Syria and Egypt on Yom Kippur almost overwhelmed Israel, which was caught unprepared on a holiday.

Two reserve soldiers and friends, Weinraub (Liron Levo) and Ruso (Tomer Ruso) gn to the Golan looking for their umt. Unable to find their unit, they join a helicopter medical unit. We never learn what their original unit did.

The movie opens with a very erotic scene involving Wienraub and his girlfriend. She never speaks and we never learn her name. They make love while smearing one another with pastel paints. It is a bizarre but erotic scene.

The balance of the film involves the helicopter medical crew picking up wounded Israeli soldiers, infantryman and tankman. We never see the Syrians, but the war is clearly in evidence, with many people wounded.

One of the battle scenes involves the shooting down of the helicopter and the wounding of those on board. They are taken to the medical evacuation unit where the men are examined and triaged.

The film closes with the return of Weinraub to his girlfriend in her apartment and her pastel paints. The suffering of the soldiers, wounded and killed, will bring you to tears.

Lone Sharks Rock for Humanity

Mark your calendars for Sunday, December 3, from 3 p.m. to 9 9.m. for a house rockin' concert to benefit Habitat for Humanity of Peconic. The Wild Rose Café on the Bridgehampton-Sag Harbor Turnpike in Bridgehampton will host a series of rock bands expected to bring down the house, and promises an afternoon of lively music and excitement for families and music lovers of all ages.

Included in the roster of popular bands performing non-stop on December 3 are Vision II, Sagg Pond Band and Big Sloe and the Little Saints. The concert will raise funds to help raise funds to help Habitat for Humanity build more new homes or renovate older dwellings for eligible families.

Kathy Herman, spokesperson for the Habitat for Humanity of Peconic, commented, "Right now in Southampton, we are working renovating a home for a family of four. The house Habitat for Humanity has obtained for the family is being gutted right down to the studs; new windows, doors, bathroom and a kitchen are being put back in. Working alongside he prospective homeowners, with the help of our many volunteer builders, we hope to be able to complete this home in time for Christmas."

Habitat for Humanity of Peconic is part of a worldwide non-profit organization seeking to provide better housing throughout the world. Proceeds from the fundraiser will be used for the current project underway in Southampton, and to develop future homes in Southampton, East Hampton and Shelter Island.

Tickets for the Habitat House Rockin' Concert are twenty-five dollars per person. Anyone wanting to attend the concert and help raise funds for this worthy cause while having a great time please call to purchase tickets at 631-324-3892 or call the Habitat for Humanity office at 631-537-1981. –Mariah Corrente silvia lehrer's cooking column

Since eating Thanksgiving leftovers is as traditional as the big dinner itself, new ideas for using and storing them are always helpful.

First, when you put those leftovers away, it's a good idea to take the turkey meat off the bones and refrigerate it in a suitable container. The less air that gets into any wrapping or containers of leftovers, the longer they will keep. If you doubt you will eat your leftover turkey within a couple of days, it's best to freeze some of it as soon as the big dinner is finished.

But don't throw those bones away - they can be used to make a tasty broth with the turkey carcass, any giblets you may not have used, a carrot and celery branch, some parsley, bay leaf, etc. Then use the base for a robust leek, Hubbard squash and pastina soup. There's nothing new about a turkey sandwich with leftover stuffing and cranberry sauce on a crusty baguette, but it does a quick job of cleaning out the refrigerator.

If extra mashed sweet potatoes are taking up room in your fridge, turn them into a quick bread that is more like a cake. If the potatoes were candied be sure to cut back on the sugar in the recipe.

There is something satisfying, at least to me, about enjoying leftovers in new and tasty ways, while making room in the refrigerator.

LEEK, HUBBARD SQUASH AND PASTINA SOUP

Use the thick, sweet flesh of the globular Hubbard squash for this seasonal soup with leek and pastina pasta.
Makes 6-8 servings

2 leeks
1 tablespoon unsalted butter
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 hubbard squash (about 2 1/2 pounds)
3 cups turkey stock*
3 cups water
Coarse (kosher) salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
1/2 cup pastina

1. Split leeks lengthwise and rinse thoroughly between the layers. Soak leeks for 15-20 minutes to rid any excess sand or dirt. Drain and dry leeks thoroughly, then cut crosswise into thin slices.

2. In a large saucepan, heat butter and oil, and put in the leek. Saute for 3-4 minutes, stirring occasionally, until tender.

3. Meanwhile, peel the tough hard rind of the squash and discard the seeds and rind. Cut flesh into 1/2 inch pieces. You should have about 5 cups.

4. Put the squash in the saucepan with the leek. Toss to coat and saute for 2-3 minutes. Pour over turkey stock and water and season with salt and several grinds black pepper. Bring mixture to a boil. Reduce heat and cook, with cover ajar, at a brisk simmer for 30 minutes.

5. Add pastina and cook for 10 minutes longer. Taste to adjust seasoning as necessary. Stir to mix and serve hot.

TURKEY STOCK*

When trimming leeks or scallions, save the outer layer and green trimmings for making a flavorful stock.
Yield: about 2 quarts

Roast turkey or chicken carcass
Giblets, drippings and any vegetables from roasting pan
3 quarts water
1 carrot
1 celery
Green of leek or scallion
2-3 sprigs parsley or dill
1 bay leaf
1 onion studded with 2 whole cloves

1. Place turkey carcass, giblets, and other materials from the roasting pan in a large saucepan and fill with fresh cold water to cover. Bring to a boil over high heat, then adjust to a brisk simmer. Skim any scum that rises to the surface. Tie carrot, celery, leek or scallion greens, parsley and bay leaf with kitchen string into a neat bundle. Immerse in the simmering liquid. Cook with cover ajar for about 3 hours. Check stock from time to time to be sure that a gentle boil is maintained.

2. When done, lift out and discard the carcass and vegetable bundle. Strain stock through a fine sieve. Cool and use as base for a soup. May be done ahead and refrigerated or stored in the freezer.

ROAST TURKEY, STUFFING AND CRANBERRY SANDWICH

Assemble a sandwich with turkey trimmings for delicious leftover pickings.
Serves 4-6

1 round loaf of crusty Italian or French baguette
5-6 tablespoons light mayonnaise
1 1/2 cups old-fashioned turkey stuffing
1 cup cranberry sauce

3/4-1 pound turkey slices
1 medium red onion, thinly sliced
1 cup cranberry sauce
Salad greens for garnish, if desired.

1. Whichever bread you use, halve the bread horizontally. Hollow out the bread leaving a 1/2 inch thick shell.

2. Thinly spread both sides with mayonnaise then spread a generous layer of stuffing on one half of bread. Spread cranberry sauce over the stuffing then layer turkey slices and onion. Place the remaining bread half over the top.

3. Cover bread with plastic wrap and weight down with a heavy object (such as a coffee can) in refrigerator for an hour or two. When ready to serve, slice into portions and bring to room temperature. Serve with salad greens and leftover cranberry relish for garnish if desired.

SWEET POTATO BREAD

This quick bread is more like a cake than a bread. Cut into slices and serve with homemade apple sauce, if dsired.
Makes 8-10 servings

6 tablespoons unsalted butter
1 cup sugar (or less if potatoes are candied)
2 eggs, beaten
1 1/2 cups pureed cooked sweet potatoes
2 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/8 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 cup coarsely chopped pecans

Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

1. In a mixing bowl, whip butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Gradually add beaten eggs, stirring all the while to incorporate. Add sweet potatoes and stir until mixture is thoroughly incorporated.

2. Sift together flour, baking soda, salt and cinnamon, and stir into the sweet potato mixture. Add pecans and stir to mix.

3. Lightly butter a loaf pan, then dust with flour. With a rubber spatula, scrape the batter into the prepared pan. Bake in the preheated oven for 1 hour and 15-20 minutes or until a cake tester or a knife inserted in the center comes out clean.

4. When bread is done, transfer to a rack to cool. Let rest 15-20 minutes before removing from the pan. Can prepare ahead and refrigerate. Bread is easier to slice after it is completely chilled.

a casual, economically priced Italian-style menu. La Paticceria serves light fare from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. Bodacious BBQ every Sunday with WLNG.

SEA GRILLE — Overlooking the Atlantic Ocean, the Sea Grille serves dinner seven days a week. Chef Joseph Ciminera prepares an exciting menu of delicious appetizers and entrees. Dinner is served from 5:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. and there is a three-course prix fixe dinner for $22.95 at 5:30 p.m., 668-2660.

THE HERITAGE INN – Charming, award winning restaurant with outstanding international gourmet quality food served by a friendly staff. Exceptional desserts all made in house, known for "creative, special dinners." Local and international wines and full bar. Catering available. Located in the heart of the wine country, Main Road, Mattituck. Dinner year round, Wed-Sun. Reservations accepted, 298-4800.

ILE DE BEAUTE — French cooking par excellence in a stately Greenport house. In addition to the authentic provencal cuisine, this Greenport newcomer specializes in crepes. They've got Heinz beat by forty-four varieties. Lovely patio dining, comfortably removed from the street out front. 314 Main Street, Greenport, 477-2822.

INDIAN COVE — Indoor/outdoor waterfront dining, located in Hampton Bays, open seven nights a week for dinner – specializing in the freshest seafood and continental cuisine rated "Excellent" by Zagat 2000. Prix fixe dinners $22.75, 728-5366.

THE INN SPOT – Truly the "in" spot for gourmet breakfast, lunch or catered events. Barely a year old, The Inn Spot has already established itself as a destination for the cognoscenti. Enjoy the wafting aroma of fresh ground coffee that greets you at the door, and the subtle strains of music, followed by the vista of a groaning bakery counter loaded with fresh baked goods. Add to that an eclectic menu incorporating standards and surprises, and you will find the experience addictive! Available for catering whether it is dinner for six or a wedding for three hundred. Telephone 631-653-0007. Facsimile 631-653-0006. Open Thursday through Monday.

JENEEN'S — Italian cuisine with an emphasis on seafood dishes, including zuppa de pesce. Others include mad chicken, Mama's chicken, stuffed artichokes, cheese cake, lasagna. Daily specials. Open 5 p.m. Thursday through Sunday for dinner. 367 Three Mile Harbor Rd., East Hampton, 324-9024.

THE LAUNDRY: IT'S A FAMILY AFFAIR

In light of the Laundry's 20th anniversary this Sunday, here's a little historical trivia about the famed East Hampton restaurant: the Bonbrest family has been involved from the Laundry's inception. Bill Bonbrest, Sr. was the original managing partner. His son Bill Jr. currently runs the restaurant, while Bill's sister Tracey is married to owner Stuart Kreisler. This past summer, the third generation of Bonbrest's made their debut when Bill Jr.'s daughter Max worked at the restaurant.

NEW SELECTIONS AT THE PLAZA CAFÉ

Chef/owner Douglas Gulija of The Plaza Cafe (283-9323) has added several new dishes to the menu. Diners may tempt their palates with such new dishes as pumpkin-lobster bisque, sautéed walleye with cauliflower mousseline and watercress sauce and chocolate chestnut torte for dessert.

NEW SELECTIONS AT BABETTE'S

Babette's (329-5377) has added some delicious new dishes to their menu. Look for choices such as savory free range chicken pot pie, butternut squash gnocchi and "Fisherman's Passion" with quenelles of shrimp, halibut and salmon, simmered with vegetables in a light tomato scented broth.

HOLIDAY MEALS AT BRIDGES

Bridges (537-9105) is now offering a special prix fixe holiday meal every Thursday night through November and December. For $19.95, diners receive a three-course dinner with choices at each course. The menu features such selections as spanakopita, sautéed breast of chicken in a berry cream sauce, poached salmon with a Provencal sauce and bread pudding.

HOLIDAY CATERING FROM TURTLE CROSSING

Turtle Crossing (324-7166) can cater holiday parties on site at their restaurant or at your home or office. The popular East Hampton restaurant features authentic western regional cooking; specializing in rotisserie and oakwood smoked dishes. Call Nancy Singer at Turtle Crossing for more information.

HOLIDAY PARTIES AT DELLA FEMINA

Della Femina (329-6666) restaurant is now booking parties for the 2000 holiday season. Whether it's an office cocktail party or special dinner for friends and family, Della Femina will help you host the perfect get together. Call Della Femina manager Walter Strubel for a consultation.

PRIX FIXE AT BOBBY VAN'S

Bobby Van's (537-0590) offers a three-course prix fixe menu, Sunday through Thursday for $25. The special includes a choice of appetizer, entrée and dessert with selections such as Caesar salad, marinated rib eye steak and warm apple Betty. Also, Bobby Van's is now taking reservations for holiday parties.

Interior & EXTERIOR

Winter Fun And Frolic At The Southampton Inn

The most happening place in the Hamptons this winter may well be the newly revamped Southampton Inn at 91 Hill Street in the atmospheric village of Southampton.

Three years ago, before the inn had been sold and luxuriously remodeled, it might have been thought of as being a "plain Jane," but since then the ugly duckling has been transformed into the most beautiful of swans. (Incidentally, wild ducks and swans can be seen on the side of a road leading to the beach only a short block away.)

In keeping with its magical transformation, the inn now offers a variety of special packages, festive events that are open to the entire community as well as to guests, cultural activities, and some unique alternative health experiences.

Dinner theatre and cabaret nights will also be featured in the inn's banquet dining room. Critically acclaimed one-woman shows and small cast musical theater pieces are currently being considered for the coming year.

The Southampton Inn is on its way to becoming a cultural center – with revolving art exhibitions and open poetry readings. It promises to be a showcase location for every kind of art and literary form – as well as the site of alternative healing presentations.

The caring new management is both pet and child friendly and offers provisions for their special needs. A special building offers pet-owners the luxury of taking their "best friends" along without offending guests that might be allergic. The building has a convenient dog-run for the dogs.

Couples with small children are offered baby-sitting services and special children's events provide parents with day care coverage in the game room.

There are ninety guests rooms and four designer rooms, with rates ranging from $119-$199 from November through April and from $269-$459 from May to October. Special packages offer unusual extras and sometimes include breakfast and lunch. There is no additional charge for children under thirteen when they share their parent's room.

On October 28, the Saturday before Halloween, I attended a Murder Mystery dinner theatre event, which was great fun.

Unique Entertainment, Inc. – a core group of twelve professional actors with extensive credits in film, stage and television—gradually began to arrive in odd, black and white costumes.

The actors interacted with dinner guests, asking each for their blood type and introducing themselves with such names as: Sir Tainly Clotting—a blood bank tycoon clad in a long, black cape reminiscent of Count Dracula.

In search for a donor of the rare CD+ blood type, his blood-deficient fiancée, Ivy User questioned each member of the audience in a heavy Russian accent.

Mispronouncing words in a nasal New York accent, Anita Pint, from the Red Cross, is killed early in the show, while Cabaret singer Ruth Lessness continues to look for a single man—any man who is breathing—and we're not quite sure what her hidden motives might be.

Detective Doug. Graves joins a host of other broadly played unlikely characters in this melodrama of murder and mystery.

What made the evening most enjoyable was the audience participation that united strangers in a hunt for clue-less clues and endless speculations. Evolving convoluted relationships kept the audience guessing while an elegant but sinister-looking reporter from "Sin Enquirer," milled about lasciviously.

A DJ was on hand to provide intermission music for dancing and needless to say, it was an evening of getting to know everyone while enjoying a delightful dinner and having a lot of playful Halloween fun (no pun intended).

Another past event was a Labor Day weekend reading and book-signing afternoon with Ralph Blumenthal, author of "Inside the Stork Club."

A special "Treat Your Feet" weekend package on November 10-12 was offered to anyone attending or participating in the New York Marathon. The package included a free foot massage.

A "Single Parents" weekend package was offered November 17-19 as a Benefit for the Southampton Day Care Center. Single parents came with their children and spent the night, however, single parents also attended the event without having to stay the night. There was a reception on Friday night from 6-10 p.m. in the Inn's charming Library. On Saturday morning, also in the Library, Waldo and his wife, Tulip (an award-winning puppeteer/clown) entertained the children from 10 a.m. until noon. A cocktail party for the parents will be held in the Ball Room from 5-7 p.m. while babysitters and counselors for the older children will were entertaining the children in the Game Room so that the parents could meet and mingle without having to worry about their children. The Cocktail Party was open to anyone in the community for a fee of $15 per parent and $5 per child. The event was open to anybody that would like to come and 5% of the proceeds were donated to the Southampton Day Care Center. A "Kids' Pot Luck Pizza Party" followed from 7-8:30. Musician Jim Turner entertained the parents from 8:30-10 p.m. On Sunday morning, children's author, Carol Webster, read and signed her books.

A list of scheduled events taking place before the end of the year is as follows:

A "Thanksgiving Weekend" package will include a full Thanksgiving Day dinner with the price of the room. Non-guests may also partake of the festive dinner for $29.95.

The Southampton Inn will have traditional Christmas Weekend festivities, including music and caroling in the Lobby/Library.

In February there will be a big "President's Day" weekend celebration especially planned for the convenience of early summer house-hunters who are looking for their summer accommodations.

March will be "Pet Month". The pets pay for their rooms while the owners stay for free. Dogs and cats are the usual celebrity guests and any other kind of pet is welcome too—even birds and Iguanas!

"Open to anything," the creative management of this charming country inn and state-of-the-arts conference center continues to expand its cultural contributions to the community as part of its services to its guests.

The Healing Power of a Gentle Touch

CranioSacral Therapy (CST) is a gentle, hands-on method used to activate the body's natural ability to heal itself. The craniosacral system is made up of the membranes and spinal fluid that surround and protect the brain and spinal cord. During a CranioSacral Therapy session, a very light pressure is applied, equivalent to the weight of a nickel, to various parts of the body where restrictions in the craniosacral system are present. This process helps rid the body of the residual effects of past trauma and associated negative responses.

Dr. John Upledger discovered, in the late '70s, that "the body often retains, rather than dissipates, physical forces resulting from accidents, injuries and emotional traumas". CranioSacral Therapy can be effective in relieving migraine headaches, chronic neck and back pain, chronic fatigue and infantile disorders, brain and spinal cord injuries, stress and tension related problems, TMJ and central nervous system disorders, among others. It can also enhance health and strengthen resistance to disease.

Maureen Scanlon, a CST practitioner at Gurney's Health Spa in Montauk, describes the benefits she derives from undergoing the treatment herself: "CranioSacral Therapy sessions dissolve my anxiety, stress and fear while balancing, relaxing and centering my system This quiets my system, which allows me to hear/sense what my body is telling me. It also gives me an overall feeling of well-being. I feel nourished and focused as my everyday life is brought back into perspective".

Maureen suggests undergoing the therapy if you have a particular issue that is bothering you or if you are experiencing pain or discomfort. It can also helps if you are just plain old stressed out. She talks about how CranioSacral treatments can be beneficial for many reasons: "My twenty-eight year old son, who lives out of state, is presently seeking treatment for a TMJ (Temporomandibular Joint Dysfunction) problem. He is finding great relief for his symptons and is amazed at how he can feel his mouth, jaw and head area align during this treatment".

Suzanne Lieder, the Spa Director, described the benefits she experienced after just one treatment: "I have been suffering from an inner-ear infection and Maureen released the pressure I was feeling. I found the treatment to be far more effective than the antibiotics I have been taking."

"I was completely exhausted mentally and physically – completely stressed out", said Ingrid Lemme, Director of public relations, advertising and marketing for Gurney's and the mother of a teenager. "I couldn't believe the effect it had on my mental spirits. I came out of this treatment as a new person and decided to promote it because it really made me feel great!" exclaimed Ingrid.

To schedule a treatment or to receive more information about CranioSacral Therapy and other therapeutic treatments available at Gurney's Health Spa, call 668-2509. Don't forget to treat yourself well during this holiday season and you won't be stressed out by New Years Day! –Susan Simm

Reduce The Risk Of Tennis Elbow

Whether you're a professional, amateur or new to the sport of tennis, it's essential to know all the facts about tennis elbow. As is the case with so many other sports injuries, prevention truly is worth a pound of cure.

It is still unknown whether shock or vibration causes tennis elbow, or if stiffer or more flexible racquets are harder on a player's arm. Poor stroke style has also been mentioned as a reason for tennis elbow. By following the tips listed below and choosing the right racquet accessories, the risk of developing tennis elbow can be greatly reduced or eliminated.

Tips for reducing the risk of arm injury:

1) Check Your Strings

Lower string tensions produce more forgiving string beds, transmitting less shock. The extra power generated by lower string tensions also allows you to use less effort with each swing. Prince, a manufacturer of tennis products, has developed Sweet Perfection String with a multifilament technology that reduces ball impact shock by up to 10%. A vibration dampener can be added to the string bed for even less vibration. One example, the Prince Silencer Vibration Dampener, reduces up to 73% of string bed vibration.

2) Check Your Stroke

Improper strokes are the main cause of tennis elbow. Poor strokes like hitting the ball behind you, or leading with your elbow on your backhand can produce strain on the arm. See your local certified tennis pro for an analysis of your strokes.

3) Check Your Racquet

Every player is sensitive to different racquet characteristics. If your racquet is still bothering your arm, try a more flexible frame, or vice versa. Stiffer racquets generate more power, have larger sweet spots, greater directional control and higher vibration dampening - all factors which reduce the risk of tennis elbow. The main benefit of a more flexible racquet is it may offer less power (greater depth control) suitable for players with higher and faster swing speeds.

4) Check Your Grip

If your grip is too small, your racquet may twist in your hand on off-center hits, forcing players to "overgrip" which strains your elbow. Make sure your racquet has the correct grip size! There are many replacement grips and overgrips with high-tech cushioning and absorption features designed to enhance the playability of the racquet. Choosing the right grip can be especially important for reducing shock. With the Prince Cushion Fit Grip, 58% of ball impact shock is reduced through the Flexfoam backing and air-channel design.

Paying attention to these tips should allow you to play a match without the nagging pain and discomfort of tennis elbow. As far as your serve goes, however, you're on your own!

POLICE BLOTTER

Frosty's head has been found. Yes, the missing head of Frosty the Snowman, also known, in other guises, as Richard Sawyer of Treely Yours in Noyac, has been found by two Sag Harbor school teachers. Fifth grade teachers Nina Landi and Lindas Fields found the head between the school and Luigi's (where they were headed for lunch). They noted the Frosty head peering at them between the trees from a yard in which a tag sale was going on. The head was stuck on a lamppost. Mr. Sawyer had lost the head of his Frosty costume when returning home from a Halloween party in Southampton. In this and other media outlets, including Newsday (which featured a large article – along with photo – on Frosty's disappearance), Mr. Sawyer raised a sustained and plaintive cry for the return of Frosty's white, bulbous head. To show his appreciation, Mr. Sawyer, as Frosty, staged an appearance at the morning program of the Sag Harbor Elementary School and presented the two teachers with a cake donated by Cyril's chef Danello. The cake was big enough to feed 400. Mr. Sawyer ferried it to the school in a truck. As the bard says, "All's well that ends well."

The saga of Edgar R.Vasquez-Pacheo seems a cross between Ionesco and Beckett. It began on one weekend night in the a.m. hours when East Hampton Town Police saw Vasquez-Pacheo's '89 Chevy pickup on the shoulder of Route 27 in Amagansett. The headlights were on, but the the pickup wasn't running. Mr. Vasquez-Pacheo was asleep. When he was asked to get out of the car he exhbited poor balance. He was taken to police headquarters and failed a blood-alcohol test.

Then things started to get hairy. The police asked Mr. Vasquez-Pacheo to remove his belt and shoes; he began to be extremely agitated, flinging his arms about. When an officer tried to calm him, Mr. Vasquez-Pacheo took out an upper bridge from his mouth, smashed it onto a concrete windowsill and, according to police, said they had broken his teeth.

At any rate, with his teeth back in his mouth, Mr. Vasquez-Pacheo spent the night in lock-up.

Who was that purple elephant? A James D. Jamison, who hails from Virginia, called the police to report that he had been assualted by three men while outside the Liars Saloon. But a number of witnesses said Mr. Jamison had instigated the fracas. The police drove Mr. Jamison home; a 2000 Dodge pickup was noted in the driveway. A few hours later police saw the Dodge in Montauk, exhibiting body damage that had not been there earlier. Mr. Jamison allegedly had backed into a dumpster, failed sobriety tests and was arrested.

There appears to be a big puddle in the parking lot... James G. Hupalowsky might have thought when he drove his vehicle off a boat launch at Louse Point and into the water. He was able to exit the cold depths unaided, walked home and called the police. When they got to his house they allgedly found Mr. Hupalowsky inebriated and he was taken back to headquarters to be arrainged, then released on his own recognizance.

Still more DWI.... Southampton Town police arrested Carlos A. Vasquez of Hampton Bays one weekend night when he tried to make a left turn in the middle of a bridge.

Jogger targeted in drive by? A man jogging in Amagansett told police he was shot in the back with a pellet gun. He said the shot was fired from a "Subaru-type wagon" with its lights off.

Here's one thing you don't need in the morning. Especially three in the morning. Carlos A. Chumi of Sprinngs started his car in order to warm it up, went back into the house, but when he came back outside, he found the leaves under the car had caught fire. He attempted to fight the blaze with a hose, was unsuccessful and called the fire department.

But it's music to my ears.... Southampton Town Police charged Roger Koster of Noyac with discharging a firerarm within 500 feet of a residence. He told the officers he had been shooting into the ground to observe the firing "pattern" of the gun.

Was it Goldilocks? An East Hampton resident reported that earlier this month some person or persons had entered his home, used a bed and drank up every bit of booze on the premises. The spirits had a value of $300.

So go do someone a favor. A gentlemen (and indeed he was trying to be a gentlemen) tried to break up a fight between two women outside the Flying Point Club in Southampton. While the Good Samaratian was engaged in aforesaid peace negotiation, his car, which he had left running, was stolen. It was a rental vehicle. A witness told police the theif was a man named "Ramone," who resides in Flanders.

I was just going home to get my Visa.... An Amagansett man was nabbed in Bridgehampton's King Kullen when he filled three bag with groceries and walked past the cashiers. He was apprehended by employees until authorities arrived.

Three's the charm. On Ponquogue Avenue in Hampton Bays, Southampton Town Police arrested a Bay Shore driver for DWI and possession of marijuana. The hapless driver had gone through a stop sign, shot across both lanes of the road and had crashed into a house.

–Jerry Cimisi

Dan's LETTERS

THE MISINFORMED WAR
Dear Dan,

I thought this would not be necessary after your multi-misinformation articles on the Spanish-American War. Now Korea becomes not the Forgotten War but the Misinformed War!

You really must stop writing these foolishly incorrect columns on America history. Remember the beach is not the library!

To start on page 19: the first American troops to arrive in Korea came from the occupying force in Japan. They were very ill prepared for battle.

On page 20, I can find no evidence that Taego ever changed hands.

Now to major misinformation. General MacArthur was not dismissed by President Truman until April 10,1951. This was months after the Chinese intervention in November-December 1950!

The UN withdrawal from the Yalu was a disaster everywhere. Your reference is only to the Marines – sadly there is much more, check Second Inf.Division at Kunu-ri.

There was NO America rescue division for the Marines, a British led force failed

Now for 1951. A cease fire was declared. It did not work. You have a reference to 13 months of war. The fighting lasted until the late spring of 1953, in effect three years!

Please checkout the fighting in places like the Punch Bowl, Heartbreak Ridge and Porkchop Hill. Also MIG-alley and at sea.

Finally, your last reference to recent U.S. military affairs.

Grenada, ("Granada" I believe is in Southern Spain.) 19 Americans died on this island.

Gulf War, 293 US personnel died of all causes.

Omitted, Lebanon, 1983, 241 Marines killed by truck bomb.

Somalia, 1993, 18 dead, 70 plus wounded (see Blackhawk Down)

. Dan, PLEASE either stop writing about U.S. history. Or get the facts correct!

Larry Stevens
East Hampton, NY

WATCH OUT FOR SPEED RACE DRIVERS
Dear Dan,

So you want to be a speed race driver. It seems like every single driver on Long Island roads is in a race. You can be the biggest guy to the smallest girl, but the second you're behind the wheel, it's "Get the Hell out of my way, because here I come, in my fast racing machine!

Everyone wants to win the race. So you swerve, changing lanes to get past the slower car without signaling. Then you try to push the slower car by tailgating. I know all slower vehicles should stay to the right and let you speed race drivers pass, but they don't. Why?

As a NYS-DOT employed person who must drive on our state roadway system to perform my job, I can't understand why a good driver would not stay to the right and let those speed racers pass. Being in the left lane, slowing them down, will only piss them off and maybe start a road-rage problem. Let the speed race driver win the ticket, as long as you're not the trophy on the wall. It's no big deal.

If anyone forgot, I believe the highest posted speed locally is 55 MPH. Boy, can you imagine how rich the counties would become if they actually enforced the speed, tailgating and failure to signal when changing lanes laws?

The key to good flowing high volume traffic is not to speed and not to tailgate. Try it! You'll find going with the flow at a good distance from the car in front of you gives you the opportunity to slow down by letting up on the gas, not using the brakes. If you keep at least a ten car gap between you and the vehicle in front, this allows other motorists to merge or change lanes safely, not to mention better emergency stopping and hopefully the vehicle behind you too.

This way the speed race driver wins not the race, but maybe a nice certificate entitled "Summons" or a vacation for one in a hospital. Our roads are not race tracks, please remember this!

PROFOUND EFFECTS?
Dan,

We love your paper and read it weekly. We have advertised with success and currently are advertising a piece of property.

We just returned from a product launch in California for a new product that is just being introduced to North America. PIMag Water! This is going to revolutionize the way we think and drink water today. Not to mention the profound effects on our health. We need to get this information out to the world!

Thanks for a great paper.
